IT WAS THE USUAL CASE.

The Revolver Had a Deadly Load in It.

Maggie Belleville Playfully Sent a Bullet Crashing Into Her Lover's Brain.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 25.—Charles Payne of 142 North Third street called on his sweetheart, Maggie Belleville, and found her handling a small 22-caliber revolver.

He remarked jokingly: "Well, Maggie, I see you are armed, suppose we fight a duel."

"All right," was the response, and she pointed the gun at him and pulled the trigger, the ball entering the left eyeball and penetrated the brain.

Payne shows remarkable vitality, having been conscious most of the time since the shooting. The physicians, however, hold out little hope of his recovery as it would be little short of miraculous.

The young woman is nearly crazed with grief. She did not know it was loaded.

HOLDING THE GRAIN.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 25.—The press of the city continues to denounce merchants for holding grain for a further rise in prices, and declare that the government should compel them to sell their grain at once, or that it be confiscated if held for further delivery at prices beyond the present figures, as was done in the time of the Crimean war.

FOR TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS.

The French Colonel Will Have Time to Reflect.

Blackmailers Are Not Treated Lightly in the Blooming Land so Far Across the Sea.

London, Nov. 25.—The man known as "Le Grand," "Charles Grand," "Captain Anderson," "The French Colonel," and many other names, who is supposed to be a well-known American crook, who was recently convicted of sending blackmailing letters to Lady Jessel, the Baroness Bolsover, and other ladies, and who yesterday was convicted of forging checks upon the London and Westminster bank, was this morning sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment at hard labor for the blackmailing portion of his blackmailing offences.

In addition, for the forgeries upon the bank, the French colonel was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment at hard labor.

There are a number of other and similar charges against the "French colonel," but it is not thought they will be pressed in view of the present sentences.

MUCH WANTED MAN.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—John Curtin, a South Carolina prisoner serving a term at the penitentiary for impersonating a United States officer, was released by expiration of sentence. An Alabama sheriff was in waiting at the warden's office to take Curtin into custody for a burglary at Huntsville, in that state.

SUIT FOR THREE MILLION.

New York, Nov. 25.—The Times this morning says the Standard Gas Light company is about to bring action against Wallace C. Andrews, the former president of that company, for the recovery of $3,000,000 of the company's stock which it is alleged is illegally held by Mr. Andrews.

LASHED TO STAKES.

Four Fishermen Live Out the Gale on Old Erie.

Untold Suffering for Thirty-Six Hours.

Wave-Washed and Benumbed by the Cold They Are Rescued Barely in Time to Save Their Lives.

Wonderful Endurance and Cool Heads, as Well as Strong Hearts, the Only Thing That Saved the Crew of a Wrecked Fishing Smack.

Lorain, O., Nov. 25.—None but those who were exposed, on land or water, to the fury of the storm, or who had an opportunity to view the mountainous seas that rolled over the surface of Lake Erie, can appreciate the great peril which four Lorain fishermen passed through, what sufferings they have undergone, or how great was their endurance.

That they escaped with their lives is remarkable; that they suffered little injury is marvelous. The men who had this frightful experience are Nicholas Shedrun, John Schenck, George Zeigman, and Ira Craven, all married and residing in Lorain, who have been employed on one of the sailing fish boats belonging to L. A. Ranney, of Cleveland.

The whole fleet of fishing boats went out to their nets as usual Monday morning. When the terrible gale arose all were glad to hurry back to shelter, and the assistance of the tug Selah Chamberlin was eagerly accepted by a few laggards.

All reached the river safely with the exception of one boat. When she was missed Captain James F. Bowen bravely started out again to search for her, but was unable to see anything of her.

Anxious friends of the men on board patrolled the beach all night long, but looked in vain for wreckage and for the lights of the missing boat.

When morning had advanced sufficiently to allow the pound stakes, to which the nets are attached, to be seen from shore, something odd about their appearance was noted, and it was surmised that the men were clinging to the keel of their capsized boat.

The tug Chamberlain again set forth. On nearer approach Captain Bowen saw that there was no boat there, but keeping on his course as fast as he could, soon descried the four men apparently clinging to the stakes. Captain Bowen tells the story as follows:

"When we saw the men on the stakes I tried to hurry my tug, but was obliged to check down, as the seas were so heavy as to break our windows if the speed were kept up. When we reached the men we found all four alive and lashed to separate stakes.

"It was with the utmost difficulty that we managed to get them loose and on board the tug, as they were too much exhausted to help themselves, and the tug was pitching so violently that we could hardly keep our feet. After several attempts we finally got them free and on our boat.

"The rescue of Zeigman, was, however, extremely hazardous. A big sea washed the tug against and over the stake to which he was lashed, and when the stake righted he was left hanging by his feet, with his head under water. He was hauled aboard, however, sustaining no other injury than a pair of badly bruised hands."

Nicholas Shedrun, the captain of the boat, is quite an old man, and the dreadful experience must have been a severe strain upon his vitality. He has, however, apparently come out of the adventure as well as his comrades. He said: "We had raised one net, but found it impossible to continue work, and were preparing to leave it when a great wave struck the boat, and, another following before she had time to right, over she went, and we found ourselves in the water.

"Each man swam for a stake. Two of them grasped one of the slender poles, but Schenck, knowing it was certain death for both to remain there, heroically left his companion in possession and struck out for another, which he was so fortunate as to reach.

"We all had strength to lash ourselves securely to the stakes, and then our capsized boat drifted away, and we were left to await our fate."

The men remained in their perilous position 26 hours before they could be rescued, and it is understood that during that time some of them lost consciousness. Shedrun does not appear to be much the worse for his experience. Craven is very nearly exhausted and does not recover rapidly. Zeigman is able to walk. Schenck said that his sufferings were so excruciating that could he have reached his knife he should certainly have cut his throat. None of the bad effects of the adventure are thought to be of a permanent character.

Is the Pelican Lost?

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 25.—The steamers Seguin and America, arriving down, bring no news concerning the schooner Pelican. The former coasted the north shore as far as Bathemana bay, the latter on the south shore. Owing to the heavy northwest snow storm now prevailing the tug Andrew Smith is at anchor under Whitefish Point. The snow here is several inches deep, and the weather is rapidly growing colder.

Was Under Gull Island.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—The missing barge Ashland finally got into shelter behind Gull island, and there she lay for five days, while the steamer was hunting for her. She lost all her canvas, her rudder was bent and rendered useless, and her anchor was lost.

THE EARL OF LYTTON.

Profound Regret Caused by His Death.

"Owen Meredith" Was Known and Loved as a Poet, Scholar, Statesman and Diplomat.

London, Nov. 25.—The news of the death of the Earl of Lytton was received here this evening and caused a feeling of profound regret to spread throughout the clubs of all descriptions. On all sides were heard words of warmest praise and sympathy for the diplomat and for "Owen Meredith."

The Earl of Lytton was born November 8th, 1831, and takes rank among distinguished Englishmen as a poet and diplomat. As "Owen Meredith" he was well known in the world of letters before he achieved fame in the world of diplomacy.

Lord Lytton was educated at Harrow. He entered the diplomatic service when only 18 years of age, being appointed attache at Washington, in 1849, where his uncle, Sir Henry Bulwer, afterwards Lord Dalling and Bulwer, was ambassador.

In 1852 he was transferred as an attache to Florence, and in 1854 he was removed to the embassy at Paris. In 1858 Lord Lytton was "first paid attache" at St. Petersburg, the same year he was gazetted "first paid attache" at Constantinople.

From that embassy in 1859, he was transferred to the embassy at Vienna. As a reward for good service on October 1, 1862, Lord Lytton was gazetted second secretary, and, shortly afterwards, he was promoted to be secretary of the legation at Copenhagen.

On May 18, 1863, he was gazetted secretary of legation at Athens; in 1868 he successfully concluded the negotiation of a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Austria, and was then transferred to Madrid. Six months later Lord Lytton was promoted to the secretaryship of the embassy at Vienna and he was transferred in 1872 to Paris.

On January 18, 1873, upon the death of his father he succeeded to the title as second Baron Lytton. Having declined the governorship of Madras Lord Lytton was appointed ambassador at Lisbon. This was in December, 1874. In January, 1876, Lord Lytton was appointed viceroy of India and on April 12, 1876, surrounded by the princes of Hindostan he presided at the magnificent ceremonies on the plains of Delhi, which attended the proclamation of Queen Victoria as empress of India.

The British ambassador had been complaining, for some time past, of not feeling well and yesterday he was confined to his bed. It was not thought, however, that his sickness was of a serious nature. He was writing verses in bed. At about half-past three one of his servants who was putting the earl's bedroom in order suddenly heard his master breathe heavily and give a deep sigh as the pencil in his hand dropped to the floor and the earl sank lifeless upon his pillow.

The Countess of Lytton, the wife of the deceased earl, was hastily summoned and reached the death bed at about 4:15, only to find that there was no doubt that her husband was dead.

The pencil and paper upon which the unfinished verses were jotted down are to be treasured among the deceased's most precious belongings and will undoubtedly prove, for many years, a sacred heirloom in the Lytton family.

CHARGES OF CORRUPTION.

An Alleged Insurance Company Brought to Time.

Suit Filed in Canton Against the Mutual Accident Insurance Company of Cleveland.

Canton, O., Nov. 25.—Suit has been brought against the Mutual Accident Insurance company of Cleveland to obtain money claimed to have been fraudulently collected. The petitioners aver that the company reported itself as a solvent company, competent to insure indemnity against death or accident; that upon the payment of $5 by each member a policy would be issued, and that the amount cost to each member would be about $15; that the advantages accruing to members was from $250 to $5,000 in case of death, and from $5 to $25 per week in case of injury; that the plaintiffs had paid installments according to the conditions amounting from $5 to $15 each; that when they attempted to collect benefits due them they found the company to be fraudulent and engaged in a scheme to obtain money without consideration.

The court is asked to compel all interested to present their claims and liabilities, and that a receiver be appointed to close up the affairs of the company. The court appointed W. H. Snyder receiver.

HOPE FOR GOOD RESULTS.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 25.—The Novosti, of this city, referring to the visit of M. De Giers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, to Berlin, says that it hopes M. De Giers will succeed in dispelling all misunderstandings between Russia and Germany and that the result of his visit to that city will be to improve the relations existing between the two nations.

UNDERTAKER ARRESTED.

Mansfield, O., Nov. 25.—The local board of health ordered the arrest of Peter Faust, an undertaker of this city, who removed to Norwalk by overland route the bodies of two children of Grove Bobbins, who died of diphtheria. Permission was not obtained from the board to move the bodies, hence the arrest. The extreme penalty is a fine of $50.

LOST HIS HAND.

Wapakoneta, Nov. 25.—Rudolph Defenbrodt met with a painful accident while at work. He was about to remove a spoke from the lathe when the bit flew out and hit him on the wrist, cutting diagonally through the bone. The hand was held only by a few shreds of flesh, and amputation will be necessary.

REFUSED PROTECTION.

Egan Turned the Minister from His Door

And He Was Shot by Chilian Government Pickets While Trying to Leave the Country.

New York, Nov. 25.—A Valparaiso, Chili, dispatch to the Herald says: Francisco C. Concha, one of Balmaceda's ministers, was shot to-day by the government pickets in the Cordilleras pass while he was endeavoring to escape into the Argentine Republic.

Senor Concha applied to United States Minister Egan two weeks ago for an asylum in the American legation. His application was refused on the ground that the list of refugees in the legation had been furnished to our government and Chili, and that the minister did not feel justified in adding to the number of refugees already under the protection of the American flag. Thereupon the unfortunate man made the attempt to escape from Chili with the above fatal result.

Alfred Delano, treasurer of the junta, has filed a balance sheet of the congressional army and navy expenses, as also the money used to hire transports. Inclusive of everything the amount, in round numbers, is $15,000,000.

Of this amount Dona Juana Edwards donated $25,000.

TOLD A THING OR TWO.

Forakerites Scored by Chairman King

For Attacking the Record of Senator Sherman.

The Learned Judge Has Discovered That Republicans Are Making Powder for the Democrats to Use in Coming Campaigns.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 25.—Judge King, chairman of the republican state central committee, in a letter regarding the pending senatorial contest, after referring to the distinguished achievements of Senator Sherman and ex-Gov. Foraker, says:

"It seems to me that every republican in Ohio who feels that the long and faithful services of Senator Sherman entitles him to support; who believes that the power and prestige of Ohio can be best maintained by keeping him in the senate should do all in his power—resort to all fair and honorable means to procure the re-election of John Sherman to the place he has so long honored and adorned.

"The supporters of Foraker have a right to urge that Sherman is growing old, but they have no right to insinuate that he has ever been disloyal to the republican party or its candidates, and are not justified in making the charges they do.

"They know in their hearts he has always been elected because he was the choice of the overwhelming majority of Ohio republicans, and has never connived at the election of a democratic legislature in Ohio or elsewhere."

Chairman Hahn.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—Chairman Hahn is in the city. He says that Sherman will have 13 votes in the senate and probably 51 in the house. Mr. Hahn takes occasion to deny certain rumors to the effect that Major McKinley will take a hand in the senatorial contest. He says that no one has authority to make such a statement and that the governor-elect will be absolutely non-committal on the question.

Gen. Asa L. Bushnell, who is also in the city, is as confident of ex-Gov. Foraker's election as Mr. Hahn is of that of Senator Sherman.

THE EVANGELICAL CASE.

Cleveland, Nov. 25.—Another twist was given to the Evangelical association fight in the courts. An amended petition was filed in the case brought by the minority faction to compel the abdication of the majority from power. The majority are placidly going ahead under the officers appointed at their Indianapolis conference and the minority now appear in court with the claim that their Philadelphia meeting was the only legal conference.

RECOVERED DAMAGES.

Fostoria, O., Nov. 25.—The jury in the case of G. W. Hazel v. the Fostoria Cold Storage Co., returned a verdict of $3,500 for the plaintiff. The case is for damages for injuries received while Hazel was doing carpenter work on the company's buildings in 1889. The plaintiff sued for $20,000, and it is thought the defendants will carry the case to a higher court.

THE STATE IS SUPREME.

The Archbishop of Aix Found Guilty and Fined.

His Being a Priest Did Not Give Him the Right to Disobey the Laws of His Country.

Paris, Nov. 25.—The archbishop of Aix, at the conclusion of the arguments, was found guilty of the charge brought against him, and was sentenced to pay a fine of 3,000 francs.

There was much astonishment and indignation felt at the result of the trial by the friends of the prelate.

There is no doubt that the archbishop and his friends expected an acquittal, and their disappointment at the result of the verdict can be imagined.

It is said after the result of the trial had become known that it had been intimated to the archbishop and his advisers that if he would write the letter of explanation, published some days ago, saying that he had no desire to insult M. Faillieres they would see that the archbishop was acquitted of the charge brought against him.

It is added that it was only upon these representations that friends of the archbishop consented to induce him to write the letter referred to.

Now, in the face of the verdict, they say this was only a trap set for the archbishop and planned to cause him and the church further humiliation.

On the other hand the supporters of the government are rejoicing at the verdict. They say that it is an eminently just one, and that the people generally will be glad that the dignity of the government has been upheld.

A priest, they say, no matter what his rank, should obey the laws of his country and respect its ministers.

PLAYING IN HARD LUCK.

Fostoria, O., Nov. 25.—The new buildings being erected in Moundville, W. Va., for the Fostoria Glass company of this city, were badly wrecked by the heavy wind storm which passed over the east Monday.

THE INDIAN ARMY.

Calcutta, Nov. 25.—Maharajah Holkar, ruler of Indore, has offered to contribute two regiments of cavalry for service in the Indian army.

TO HONOR THE NATION.

Committee on Awards of the World's Fair.

Congress Will Be Asked to Appropriate Money Enough to Make the Affair a Howling Success.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The committee on awards of the world's fair commission is now in session in this city. Very little was done yesterday, as nearly all the members were interested in securing the national republican convention for some city of their particular preference.

A sub-committee reported an outline of the work. The committee on awards, by the express terms of the act of congress, and by the action of the national commission, is clothed with the supervision and management of the matter of awards, the only limitation to their action being the approval of the national commission.

The act of congress creating the commission specially provided that the awards, if made at all, should be by the national commission, thereby giving a national importance to the matter.

To carry out in good faith the provision of the act will require a large appropriation. The committee will formulate an appeal to congress, based upon such data as have been secured, by which they hope to be able to make their work a credit to the United States.

The committee maintains that in this matter the good faith of the nation has been pledged, first by the provision of the act of congress, and, secondly, by the fact that all nations of the world have been invited to participate in the great national undertaking.

From this point of view the committee says it becomes compulsory on the national government to do the handsome thing when it comes to making the awards. The members believe that congress will do this.

The board of control is also in session to-day, engaged in preparing the report of the board for submission to the president, and incidentally in taking steps to secure the $5,000,000 appropriation from congress, deemed necessary.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Dublin, Nov. 25.—Rev. Samuel G. Cotton, who was found guilty of manslaughter by a coroner's jury on Thursday last, in having caused the death of a boy named Brown, an inmate of the Curragh orphanage at Kildare, was arraigned in court to-day and fully committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter, bail being refused in his case.

TAXATION AMENDMENT.

Why it Was Again Defeated at the Polls.

The Vote Cast in Favor of It Was Large, But it Requires Two-Thirds of the Total State Vote.

Columbus, Nov. 25.—(Special)—The footings on the proposed taxation amendment to the constitution and the proposition to provide for a constitutional convention, voted on at the November election, were completed to-day and the official announcement of the vote made.

There is evidently a strong sentiment in favor of the taxation amendment, which failed of adoption probably because of the carelessness of the electors or through fear of marking the Australian ballot.

There were 303,177 affirmative votes on the amendment, against 65,014 in the negative, being nearly five to one of those voting on the proposition.

The total vote, however, fell far short of that cast for governor, which was 796,529, and since it requires two-thirds of the total vote to change the constitution, the amendment was defeated.

The sentiment, judging from the vote, is equally as strong against the holding of a constitutional convention. On this proposition the vote stood: Yes, 99,784; no, 161,722.

It is considered more than probable that the incoming legislature will again submit the taxation amendment, which has already been twice defeated. These successive defeats are, in the opinion of many, due to the carelessness of the electors, who neglect to vote either way on the proposition.

INDIANA'S GOVERNOR.

Ira Chase Has Taken the Oath of Office.

Indianapolis, Nov. 25.—(Special)—Chief Justice Elliott administered the oath of Governor Ira Chase.

office to Lieut. Gov. Ira Chase and he became governor of the state yesterday afternoon.

BEN HASN'T TOLD HIM.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Assistant Secretary of War Grant says he has not been officially informed of any intention on the part of the president to appoint him secretary of war.

FOUGHT FOR THEIR GIRL.

Rival Lovers Meet on the Roadside

And One Kills the Other—The Girl Was as Much at Fault as Either of the Men.

Grantville, Ga., Nov. 25.—Wilkes K. James, the son of a prominent farmer, was shot and killed yesterday by Edward Jenkins, the son of a neighbor. Both young men were rivals for the hand of a young lady here. The girl kept the two men in suspense, first favoring one and then the other. Ten days ago both of the young men called upon the girl at the sametime. There was a game of "freeze out and when they parted Jenkins told James that the next time they met would be the last. Yesterday they came together four miles from town and both drew revolvers and began firing. James fell dead with a bullet through his head. Jenkins gave himself up to the police.

SENSATIONAL ARSON CASE.

Newark, O., Nov. 25.—The celebrated arson trial of the state against Ezra Tompkins, of Johnstown, has commenced. On the 11th of December, 1890, the town was almost destroyed. The buildings were mostly owned by Tompkins or his wife. Tompkins and one Charles Barton are charged jointly with firing the buildings for the purpose of securing the insurance.

BADLY BURNED.

East Liverpool, O., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Rebecca Irwin met with a serious accident. While heating alcohol in a tin cup the fluid exploded, setting her clothing on fire, also a bed in the same room, upon which lay her sick son. Help was near at hand and the flames were extinguished but not before Mrs. Irwin was seriously burned. The sick young man went into convulsions and his recovery is doubtful.

POWDER EXPLOSION.

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 25.—The Dupont Bros.' powder mills at Sumneytown, formerly owned by James S. Miller, were blown up last night, horribly mangling and killing James Wade, who was tapping the chasers contrary to instructions. The buildings are a complete wreck.

NO ELECTION.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 25.—The vote for mayor yesterday resulted as follows: C. S. Smith, republican, 6,305; W. K. Potter, democrat, 6,494; H. C. Clark, independent, 709; H. B. Edmunds, prohibition, 237; S. H. Bailey, national, 143—no choice. D. L. Granger was re-elected city treasurer.

TOOK THEIR HOMES AWAY

Awful Work of the Storm in the East.

Late Reports Make the Disaster More Terrible.

The Village of Jefferson Nearly Swept Out of Existence by the Wind—Hundreds of Houses Unroofed.

Baltimore, Nov. 25.—Dispatches from Cumberland, Middletown, Frostburg, Hagerstown, Frederick and other points in the western part of the state give details of the ravages of Monday's storm.

It was terrible in the valleys of the Blue Ridge and on the Alleghenies.

The village of Jefferson, in Frederick county, was nearly swept away. The houses were shaken to their foundations and the walls cracked. Great damage was done to buildings at the fair grounds in Frederick.

Along the roads leading into Frederick are strewn trees, fences, shutters, and portions of small buildings, and in some places the roads are impassable.

In Allegheny county hundreds of houses were unroofed and otherwise damaged and many poor families on the eastern slope of the mountains are homeless.

In the southern part of the state many tobacco barns were blown down and the crops utterly ruined by water. Many farmers have lost their entire crop.

A SAD THANKSGIVING.

Disastrous Blaze in Fremont Last Night.

Thomson-Houston Carbon Work and the McLean Spike Works Burned to the Ground.

Fremont, O., Nov. 25.—(Special)—The Thomson-Houston Carbon Works, the largest concern of its kind in the United States, and the McLean Spike Works, were totally consumed by fire last night. The fire originated at 7 o'clock in the plating room and was caused by an explosion of a gasoline barrel which knocked the night watchman a distance of fifteen feet.

In one hour the entire plant, which covered four acres, was gutted, with the exception of the store-room which contained quite a supply of carbons. The plant is valued at $200,000 and was new.

The fire department worked bravely, but were unable to battle with the flames.

Two hundred men are thrown out of employment.

Manager Richmond was out of town at the time. There is some fear that the works will not be rebuilt here.

The carbon works carried an insurance of $120,000.

Much Interest Already Shown in the Contest—The Coming Committee Meeting.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Much interest is felt in the approaching meeting of the executive committee of the national democratic committee, which is called to convene in Washington on December 8.

This committee will issue a call for a meeting of the national democratic committee in this city, and it is thought that the date fixed will be January 8, 1892, the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans.

Already interest centers in where the democratic convention will be held. The following cities are already in the field and have, through soliciting support of members of the committee, formally announced themselves: Washington, New York, Detroit, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Chicago and Minneapolis. It is understood here that Detroit and New York intend to put forward the most strenuous exertions to secure the convention.

...K,

THE TRIAL MUST GO ON.

Graves Must Answer to a Denver Jury

The Charge of Murdering Mrs. Barnaby.

The History of a Crime, the Trial of Which Promises to be One of the Most Sensational Ever Held in the Pacific States.

Denver, Col., Nov. 25.—The second division of the district court was packed to suffocation when Judge Rising took his seat upon the bench to render decision on the motion of Dr. Thatcher Graves for a continuance of 90 days in the case wherein he is charged with poisoning Mrs. Josephine Barnaby of Providence, R. I.

The court in rendering his decision reviewed the motion of the defense in detail and in conclusion said: "I must come to the conclusion that upon the question of fact the grounds of the motion are not well taken and the motion must be denied."

At these words, Dr. Graves trembled, turned pale, and looked appealingly at his attorneys, but receiving no hope from them he, with a sigh of resignation, accepted the unpleasant fact that the trial for his life must go on.

His attorney, Judge Furman, immediately took an exception to the decision and the court then announced that the work of selecting the jury would begin.

The crime for which Dr. Graves is now on trial took place in this city last April, but the history leading up to it dates back for a number of years. Mrs. Barnaby was the wife of J. H. Barnaby, a wealthy merchant of Providence, who secured a divorce from his wife, leaving her with a fortune of $100,000 and an annual income of $2,500.

Dr. Graves was her intimate friend and financial adviser on a salary of $5,000 a year. Mrs. Barnaby was a great traveler and she spent a portion of each summer at the residence of Edward Bennett, at Blue Mountain Lake. Last spring while there she and Dr. Graves had a misunderstanding.

Mrs. Barnaby immediately started west and eventually arrived in this city where she visited the Worrells. On April 3, six days before she arrived here a package came to her address which contained a bottle of liquid labeled: "Fine old whisky from your friend in the woods."

On the night of the 13th after the drive she and Mrs. Worrell drank the contents of the bottle and both were taken ill and Mrs. Barnaby, after suffering terrible agony, died. Mrs. Worrell recovered at the end of a few days. Physicians declared that the woman suffered from arsenical poisoning and the detectives were set to work.

The Worrells were beneficiaries in Mrs. Barnaby's will to the extent of $10,000 and Dr. Graves for $25,000. Suspicion was cast upon the Worrells but no action was ever taken. The writing upon the package resembled that of Dr. Graves and he was indicted for murder and released on $30,000 bonds.

Dr. Graves has many friends here who protest his innocence. They say he could have no object in desiring Mrs. Barnaby's death as he was receiving a good salary and if he wanted her fortune he could have taken it as he had absolute control of it. His enemies declare he had other reasons for wishing the woman out of the way. The question, however, will be decided within the next two or three weeks.

OHIO'S NATIONAL GUARD.

Surgeon General Hart Files His Annual Report.

A Stricter Physical Examination Asked—Encampments Should Be Held In June or July.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—Surgeon General Hugh A. Hart, of the Ohio National guard, to-day submitted his annual report to Adjutant General Dill. The feature of the surgeon general's report is in relation to the requirements of a soldier, and in this connection he recommends a radical innovation. Upon this subject he says:

"I would recommend that every recruit be required to submit to a rigid physical examination before entering the service of the state, and that no man be accepted who is suffering from any physical ailment or mental defect, whether such disability is continuously manifest, or only periodically so.

"I can conceive of nothing more unjust to the state, discreditable to the service and detrimental and humiliating to the individual than the forced exhibition of infirmities which are distressing to himself and demoralizing to his comrades.

"I sincerely hope that this recommendation will be given the serious consideration it certainly deserves, and that the methods of carrying it out will be properly formulated and adopted in the near future.

"I would also suggest and earnestly recommend that the camping season begin one month earlier and be confined to the months of June and July, instead of the later summer months, as heretofore. The great enemy of the soldier going into camp in summer is bowel trouble and his danger is multiplied tenfold by entering camp during the months when the troubles are ripe.

"Every guardsman must learn that, if he wishes to be a capable and hardy soldier, there are moral, physical and mental qualifications required in him—that there is instruction to be received from the surgeon and chaplain as well as from the colonel and captain. Many advantages are derived from improved implements of war, but superiority in battle will always depend principally on the morals of the troops.

"Unfortunately, many commanding officers in times of peace are less thoughtful of perfectly healthful conditions for their men than the pomp and circumstances of military display."

The surgeon general recommends that two ambulances be furnished to the medical department. He also suggests that the men of each company be instructed as to the first care of the sick so that they can be advantageously used as a hospital corps when such action is advisable. In speaking of the new camping grounds at Newark, he praises the national advantages and convenient location of the place.

WHERE THE CHURN WENT.

A Thanksgiving Story for Young Folks, Old Folks will Enjoy.

"Somebody's got to stay home from church," said Hulda.

Hulda was the girl who helped in the kitchen at grandpa's.

"Home from church on Thanksgiving Day!" exclaimed grandpa, shaking his head. "How's that?"

"It's 'cause Mr. Robert's got to go in the train this afternoon," said Hulda. "We've got to have dinner earlier."

"Can't it be managed any other way?" asked grandpa.

"I don't see how," said Hulda. "I could put in the turkey and make a big fire, but somebody's got to be here to open the damper just at the right time."

This was a serious business. Grandpa and grandma wanted to go because they had never missed going on Thanksgiving as long as they could remember. Tony's father and mother wanted to go because they were at the old home on a visit, and liked to go to the old church and see old friends. Hulda wanted to go because it was Thanksgiving.

"I'll stay," said Tony.

"Oh, I don't believe you could do it, dear," said grandma. "You are so little. "I'm six!" said Tony, proudly. "I shall be seven next Thanksgiving."

"I do believe he could pull out the damper all right," said Hulda. "He always does just as he is told."

"Yes, always," said grandma.

And by reason of this good character Tony was allowed to stay home.

"Now I'll make my snow man," said Tony, looking with great satisfaction at the big sleigh as it drove away with its load.

The snow had fallen a foot and a half deep two or three days ago. To-day it was thawing a little, and Jacob, the farm boy, told him it was exactly right for making a snow man; and Tony was afraid that if he waited till afternoon it would be too soft.

He worked as hard as a six-year-old boy could work, remembering just at the right time to go into the great kitchen and pull out the damper as Hulda had told him; and by the time the others came from church there it was, a splendid fellow, legs, arms, head, nose, chin and all, waiting for a few finishing touches from Jacob.

The turkey in the oven was baking, too, just as a Thanksgiving turkey ought to bake.

Jacob touched up the man, while Hulda touched up the turkey. He made a hat for him, a difficult thing to do, and ended by putting a pipe in his mouth.

But Tony was a Band-of-Hope boy, and would not allow that.

It froze hard that night, and in the morning the snow man was as solid as a rock. He had come for the winter, Jacob said.

"You'll have to get along with the snow man," said Tony, when grandma was wishing him good-by; but grandma thought the snow man would very poorly fill the place of her merry, laughing little boy.

"What's become of the churn?" asked Hulda, the day after all the Tanksgiving visitors were gone. "It's gone."

"It must be in the shed just where you put it," said grandma.

"I should 'a'said so myself," said Hulda, "but I've hunted high and low and it isn't anywheres."

"We haven't churned for a week," said grandma.

"No 'cause the company wanted all the milk and cream. But I want to churn now, and where that churn can 'a' went to beats me."

It was a most surprising mystery. Grandma and Hulda hunted through the whole house. Jacob hunted through barns, stables and granaries, and then came in declaring it couldn't be anywhere except in the shed and must be there. But his saying did not make it so.

After every nook and corner of the place had been searched everybody declared the churn must have been stolen.

All winter long the snow man stood in the front yard. Sometimes a little thaw would come, and he lost his nose and chin and then his hat. But it always froze hard again, and it was late in March before his arms melted away.

That was the beginning of a long thaw. The sun must have thought him a funny man, for he smiled down on him till there was nothing left of him but a little heap of snow.

And then Hulda, looking out of the window one day, exclaimed: "My—lind!"

"What is it?" said Jacob.

"If there aint that churn!"

"I'm blessed if it isn't," said Jacob.

He went out, kicked the churn out of the snow and brought it into the house.

Four months ago a small boy had found it very hard to make a good beginning on his snow man.

"The snow slumps down so," he said. "I must have something to start with."

He hunted about in the barn and the shed.

"Ah, there's the very thing," he said. "It isn't so big as a barrel and will do better."

So he set it firmly down, piled the snow all around it, and had a good start for his snow man.

The hoops were rusty, and the churn soon fell to pieces, but nobody cared, for a new churn had been bought long before.

There was a great laugh about it, but grandma wiped her eyes as she said: "I'd give another churn to have the dear little fellow here again."—Youth's Companion.

BRAZIL'S NEW RULER

Is Busily Engaged Forming a Government.

The Dictator Left His Seat None to Soon.

The Soldiers from the South Were Marching to the Front with a Determined Purpose of Deposing Him.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 25.—Pexotto is forming a government. The inhabitants of this city whose sympathies have been with the congressional party have at last thrown off all guise of adherence to the existing government and have openly declared their determination to oppose the dictatorship of Fonseca, and their resolve that he must abandon the presidency which he has held for only a comparatively brief period.

Like Dom Pedro, President da Fonseca has quietly yielded to the demands of the people, that the executive of the Brazilian government be deposed from his high office.

People of this city arose in arms against the dictator's government, an uprising that has thus far been very successful, and the insurgents have accomplished the ends for which they had so long been secretly planning.

Among the first things the revolutionists did was to increase their store of arms and ammunition. A strong force of insurgents made an attack on the naval arsenal, and after weak and only half-hearted effort on the part of those stationed at the palace to repulse the attempt of the invaders to effect entrance to the building, its guardians were soon captured by the enemy.

Only a few shots were exchanged and the poor resistance made by the defenders of the arsenal is shown by the fact that none of the insurgent force is reported to have been killed or seriously wounded.

A laborer in the arsenal who was struck by one of the shots fired by the attacking party, is the only one of the contestants known to have lost his life in the assault. One of the cannon balls from the arsenal was badly directed, and struck the Candelebra church, causing considerable damage to the building.

News of the uprising had a very disquieting effect, and created the greatest alarm in this city among women and children and those citizens who had not taken arms in support of either party, and when the fighting began at the arsenal and the rattle of musketry and the boom of the cannon were heard all were seized with a wild panic and fled to places of safety until the firing had ceased and the conflict was at an end.

Merchants and shopkeepers, fearful that their places would be looted by insurgents or by thieving individuals who would take advantage of the confusion and excitement to pillage their stock, made haste to close their establishments adn securely bolt and bar both doors and windows and take such other measures for the safety of their property as occasion warranted.

All their hurried preparations were unnecessary, however, for, as already described, the attack on the arsenal was of only short duration, and beyond the smashing of windows struck by the cannon ball no further damage was inflicted upon the property and disorder in the city was gradually dispelled and all the people are now rejoicing at the success which has crowned the efforts of those who took part in the revolution to put an end to Da Fonseca's dictatorship.

Members of the cabinet which had been organized by President da Fonseca resigned when the triumph of the revolutionists became an established fact and the manifesto of Da Fonseca announcing that he would bow to the will of the people had been issued.

A state of seige which had been proclaimed was at once raised when the insurgents had obtained control of the government. It is expected that the members of congress which has been dissolved by Da Fonseca will be recalled to office. A number of provinces have not been heard from, but it is believed from advices hitherto received in regard to growing opposition throughout the country to Da Fonseca that his downfall will everywhere be received with the same satisfaction as at the capital.

Came None Too Soon.

New York, Nov. 25.—A special to the Herald from Buenos Ayres says: The insurgents in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, under command of General Ossario, were marching toward the north with the intention of invading the adjoining state of Santa Catalina and thence moving upon Rio Janeiro when the news of Fonseca's abdication reached Ossario. They had just arrived on the frontier of the two states. The river squadron, notwithstanding overtures from the revolters, has maintained its neutrality.

Lastest advices from Rio Grande do Sul say that there is general and great rejoicing over the dictator's retirement. It is believed that the insurrection will now speedily come to an end, and that navigation of the river will be promptly re-established.

ARE YOUR FEET MATES?

If Not, Then You Belong to the Great Majority.

"Few people's feet are mates," mused the Broadway shoe dealer yesterday, as a customer departed.

"Which foot is the larger?"

"That depends.'

"But how do you manage?'

"Oh, easy enough. The difference isn't great enough to cause any serious annoyance. However the latest thing in the shoe line is intended for just such cases. It is known as the reversible shoe.'

"That's odd,"

"Both odd and even. This shoe," added the dealer, "is made with a flat sole. You will also observe that the shoe is not turned for the right or the left, as in ordinary shoes, but, being absolutely straight along the inner edge of the sole, may readily be worn on either foot.

"Shoes of this pattern are believed to be easier on the feet than the common article with turned soles. So if your feet are not mates, as is the case with most people, you may sleep sound at night now, for your case has been attended to in a scientific manner."

CATHOLIC AND PROTESTANT

The Two Religions Getting Closer Together.

A Presbyterian Minister Invited to Sit in the Board of Directors of the House of Good Shepherd.

Washington, Nov. 25.—(Special)—Rev. Dr. Wm. A. Bartlett, pastor of the New York avenue Presbyterian church, has been invited by the Rev. Father Mackin, pastor of St. Paul's chapel, to sit in the board of directors of the house of Good Shepherd.

This institution is owned and controlled by the Roman Catholics. The exclusiveness of the Catholic church in matters of the kind is universally understood. The placing of a very prominent Presbyterian minister in an important directorate is significant in showing the growth of liberal and tolerant ideas in both creeds.

Dr. Bartlett in his younger days held a pastorate in Chicago. He wrote and preached his first sermon in Minneapolis in 1833, when a theological student.

There were more than 125 special representatives of daily newspapers at the capital at the last session of congress. The number of men in the press gallery was 50 per cent. greater than the number on the floor of the senate. It was more than 33 1-3 per cent. greater than the number on the floor of the house of representatives. There will be fully as many and perhaps more at the session which opens December 7, and with the republican executive, the two houses of congress divided between the two great parties, and the diversion to be furnished by the alliance element in the national legislature, they ought to find material enough to keep the wires pretty hot between December 7 and—will it be July or October next?

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Little Johnny: "Say, why is we all so dressed up and got such bully things to eat to-day? Is they a circus in town?"

Mamma: "No, Johnny, this is in honor of Thanksgiving day. Heretofore your papa was obliged to lay out all his ready money for winter clothing and there wasn't anything left to buy goodies with, but since the Hyman company commenced selling Clothing and Cloaks and Dress Goods so cheap and on easy payments besides, your papa has been able to buy us a nice winter outfit and still have money enough to get up this fine dinner."

Husband: "Yes, and it makes me mad to think how many years we had to go without these comforts. Johnny, when you grow up, you'll remember the Hyman Co. and Thanksgiving day, won't you?"

Johnny: "Bet-cher life I will; and say, I'm going ter call it Hyman's day, instead of Thanksgiving. Hoorah for Hyman!"

CURRENT TOPICS.

The St. Louis Republic is responsible for this bit of heretofore unwritten history. A venerable Methodist clergyman, who in 1859 was presiding elder of a large district in which were no railroads, tells the story of the first Thanksgiving proclamation issued by a governor of Missouri:

In the summer of 1859 I was the guest of an old friend, a good Methodist down in Benton county, and during the afternoon he asked me how it happened that the governor of Missouri never issued a proclamation appointing a day of thanksgiving and prayer, as was done by the governors of the New England states. I told him that I had never considered the matter, but would suggest it to Gov. Stewart as soon as I returned to Jefferson City.

My friend then said that if the proclamation was issued, I must be his guest on Thanksgiving day, and that a yellow gobbler should at once be put in fattening against the feast.

In course of time I got back to the capital, and called upon the governor to suggest the advisability of issuing the proclamation.

"Well, parson," said the governor, "that's in the religious line. Suppose you write it."

I had no objection, and at once proceeded to try my prentice hand on a state paper. When I got to the date I was puzzled. You see, I had in mind that yellow gobbler down in Benton county, and if I fixed the date at the usual time, I couldn't possibly reach it. So I made a careful calculation as to my route, and decided that the first week in December would enable me to make connections.

Without saying a word I entered Thursday, December 8, as the time for the first official Thanksgiving in Missouri. The governor read the document over carefully, signed it, sent it to the secretary of state, and in due course the day was proclaimed.

An increase of interest by the women's department of the world's fair was urged by Mrs. Potter Palmer, at a meeting of prominent women Thursday, held at Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's parlors on Beacon street, says the Boston Globe. Although American women are placed at the head of all other women in energy and independence, they are far behind those of several European countries in efforts to prepare exhibits showing the higher side of life. The progress of American women in education, the arts and industries has been so marked that it should be shown at the world's fair, so that it may be appreciated by all nations.

Speaking of the new movement of New York clergy to preach "labor" sermons in the hope of achieving better conditions for living, the World of that city says: This is the sort of religion which is at the bottom of the new movement to "make New York a better place to live in," for those who are obliged to pass all the year and their whole lives in town. It concerns itself first with the world and the time that now is, knowing the close relation between physical well-being and morality. The influence of dogmas and doctrines in regulating conduct and shaping character is not denied by those who believe that the first step towards bettering a community is to improve its means of health, to increase its comforts, to cultivate its sense of beauty, to provide it with innocent recreation and aids to education.

In his article upon "The Dangers of the Farmers' Alliance," published in the last issue of the Forum, Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, says: "It seems to be true that every industrial society is looking to congress to alleviate the condition of every laboring man. The real cause of this appeal to congress is the consciousness of these classes that congress has given direct aid to the power of concentrated capital and credit by its legislation in respect of taxation, finance and transportation and these societies naturally expect relief from that quarter. Notwithstanding their natural aversion to class legislation the farmers have been forced into the attitude of beggars for loans by the oppressive operation of legislation enacted in the interest of other classes. But they understand the policy and will sooner or later go back to democratic principles. They regard the avowed purpose to destroy foreign commerce in such articles as can be produced in the United States, at whatever cost to the consumer, as a declaration of commercial warfare against the countries to which the farmers are compelled to look for a market for all their redundant crops."

Idle newspaper correspondents at Washington have begun to amuse themselves by writing speculatively in regard to the probable course of Senator Hill during December, says the Philadelphia Record. His term as governor will expire with the year; his active duties as United States senator will begin early in December, unless he should choose to stay at Albany for the brief remaining period of his gubernatorial term. Mr. Hill has not as yet been convicted of a political blunder during his long public career. He is a born politician, and loves public affairs and the manipulation of party machinery as the average citizen loves home and family. No ties of kindred, no domestic interests or ambitions, distract his attention from his public duties. His course during December will as nearly reveal the true nature of the man as could be possible in the case of one who keeps his own counsel so closely.

The sun's time is too fast by clock time on November 2 by 16 minutes and 20 seconds, and on February 12 it is slow by nearly 14 1-2 minutes. There are only four days during the year when sun time and clock time agree, viz: April 15, June 15, September 1 and December 24. There is also a slight difference between the rising, midday and setting, varying with the longitude, but this is so small as to be hardly perceptible. Most almanacs give the apparent time of the sun's rising and setting, making the proper allowances for atmospheric refraction. The difference between the actual and apparent rising and setting of the sun also varies with the latitude where observations are being made. In this latitude this difference is set down at about the width of the sun's diameter, which is about 32 minutes of a degree.

The Russophile fever manifests itself in some strange ways in France. The latest freak is the solemn proposition of a member of the chamber of deputies that all the Jewish bankers be expelled from the country. The blow was aimed, of course, at the Rothschilds, but the excuse was that Jewish bankers exerted a baleful influence upon state finances. The expulsion of the Rothschilds would deprive the Paris market of one of the most important factors in the business world, and yet M. Laur insisted that his proposition should be seriously considered by his associates. Horace Greeley's remark about the uselessness of horned cattle in printing offices would find a parallel in certain legislators, for there is nothing so out of place and so absolutely worthless as a member of a public assembly whose controlling motive is religious or race bigotry.

STABBED TO DEATH.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 25.—Ex-Mayor Phillips, of Oglethorpe, was cut to death Tuesday night by a well known farmer named Cullen Killebrew. The fence between the plantations owned by the two men caught fire. The Killebrews went over to see Phillips about it. Cullen Killebrew drew a knife and plunged it three times into the back of Phillips. The wounds went almost through the victim's body. Phillips was at one time mayor of Butler.

IT WAS COSTLY LOVE.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 25.—Miss Sadie T. Ray, of Grove City, Pa., has commenced suit in the Trumbull county court against Lee R. Streeter, a well-known young man residing at Gustavus, charging him with breach of promise and asking judgment for $10,000.

DECIDEDLY BAD MOVE.

A Fortune Turned Over to the Hands of the Lawyers.

Wellston, O., Nov. 25.—(Special)—One of the most important cases that ever came into the Jackson county courts is the Robert Lucas will case, and which will be tried at the term of common pleas court now in session.

Mr. Lucas died a short time ago and his youngest daughter, Miss Blanche, has instituted proceedings to have the will set aside.

The old gentleman was married four times and left two children, one by his second and one by his fourth wife, both daughters.

His estate aggregates in value $200,000, and in the distribution of his property it is claimed that he favored the elder daughter to the extent of $20,000.

The younger daughter sets forth the claim that her father was suffering from aberration of the mind, and that the difference was made because of over-persuasion upon the part of her elder sister.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Democrats Claim That Their Party Has Been Victorious.

New York, Nov. 25.—An Albany dispatch to the World contains the following: "The senate will stand democrats 16, republicans 15, independent 1. The casting vote of the lieutenant governor will give the organization of the senate to the democrats."

This calculation leaves to the senate itself the ascertainment and decision in the case of Peck, of Syracuse, who is alleged to be a citizen of Canada. The assembly therefore is expected to contain 67 democrats and 61 republicans.

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN LEAGUE.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The sub-executive committee of the national republican league appointed to decide upon the place and date for the next convention of the league, held a long session at the Arlington hotel, and finally decided to refer the matter to a special committee consisting of General Clarkson, of Iowa; Mr. Allen, of Michigan; W. W. Tracey, of Illinois; E. C. Little, of Kansas; and W. E. Riley, of Kentucky. This committee will meet to call of the chairman.

THE CONSERVATIVE PROGRAM.

London, Nov. 25.—The Standard, in its comments upon the conservative program adopted at Birmingham yesterday, says that Lord Salisbury, in stating his future career on union, leaves out of sight one possible contingency—that the electors may chance to disagree with him and be perverse enough to regard matters of less interest as more important to themselves than Ireland.

SECRETARY FOSTER'S ILLNESS.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Although quite ill with grip Secretary Foster's condition is such as not to cause the least apprehension. He is doing well, but is confined to his room under the care of a physician. The latter will not permit him to see callers or give any attention to business matters. Mr. Foster is impatient to get on his feet again so that he can finish his annual report.

BANK FAILURE.

Bradford, Pa., Nov. 25.—The private banking firm of S. Peters, Pool & Co. will announce their failure to-day. The capital stock of the bank is $75,000, and the firm owes half a million. They claim to be able to pay their creditors in full.

TWO HAPPY HEARTS

Made One To-Day—Marriage of Clara Irene Dennison and Blacque Wilson.

One of the honey gatherers from this hive of "Bees" takes unto himself to-day a life partner. If the happy young couple were as rich in worldly possesions as they are in the heartsome good will and wishes of hosts of friends, they could establish almost any kind of trust or monopoly.

The ceremony, a simple and pretty one, took place at 2 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dennison, 2022 Vermont avenue. The words that cemented the bond of union were gracefully spoken by Rev. E. W. Hunt, pastor of the Ashland Avenue Baptist church. Miss Edith Belford played the wedding march. The room was fragrant and pretty with chrysanthemums, roses and carnations, tastefully intermingled with smilax and ferns. The bridal party stood within a semi-circle of palms and tall ferns. The bride was fair and lovely in soft, white silken robes, and the groom bore himself with the dignity that is characteristic of him on all occasions.

Hayward Brown, cousin of the groom, was his best man, and Miss Jessie Platt was the bride's supporting maid. The guests from abroad were Mrs. J. W. Andrews, of Sandusky; Mr. Bert Lysle and Miss Lillie Lysle, of Tiffin, cousins of Mr. Wilson; Miss Georgie Dennison, of Findlay, cousin of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson and Miss Lizzie Gibson, of Le Moyne, O. The flower girls were the little misses, Mabel Dennison, sister of the bride, and Florence Gibson.

Mrs. Omar Wilson, mother of the groom, and his sister, Miss Mabel; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer White, Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Belford, Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Smead, Miss Edith and Mr. Forsi Belford, Mr. George H. Stevens, Miss Elizabeth Paddock, Mr. Frank Thomas and Miss Nannie Ormond were some of the Toledo relatives and friends present. Mr. White, of the Bee, was groomsman at the marriage of Mr. Wilson's parents, and it was in his employ that Mr. Wilson came to Toledo, leaving a good situation in Tiffin, his native home, to try his fortune in the "Future Great." The most eminent success has attended him and he stands in the front rank of newspaper workers in the city to-day. Earnest, capable, faithful, he has proven his ability, from the printer's case to the chair of telegraph editor, on the street or in special and department work.

"Blacque" is popular with his co-workers, a favorite in the Press club, and a downright splendid good fellow who deserves all the favors of fortune that have fallen to him. That he has chosen a worthy and lovely girl for his life companion is attested by a large circle of devoted friends who assure us that congratulations may well be evenly divided. Forty or more guests enjoyed the daintily spread and neatly served wedding dinner. Among the many gifts that bespeak the sincere regard of friends and associates are an elegant chair from the Bee staff, table china, glass and silverware of every description from "both sides of the house." The Press club as a body testified their esteem and affection by the gift of an elegant Mexican onyx clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be at home, Tuesdays, after December 1, at 1957 Putnam street. Friday evening a reception and tea will be given by the bride and groom at their home, to the members of the Bee staff.

Another round of good wishes and the page is turned on the most momentous chapter in the life of man and woman.

TOLEDOAN DEAD.

Ed McMahon, of This City, Breathed His Last in a Chicago Hospital.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Edward McMahon died last night at Mercy hospital, of pneumonia.

McMahon married the daughter of Col. Paul Edwards in this city some time ago.

MCKINLEY NOT IN THE FIGHT.

Washington, Nov. 25.—In answer to a question by your correspondent, Major McKinley said: "I have taken no part in the senatorial contest in Ohio, and do not intend to. The legislature chosen by the people of the state has resting upon it the duty of choosing a senator, and I have confidence that its decision will reflect the republican sentiment of the state."

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY.

St. Marys, O., Nov. 25.—George Breo, of this city, who has heretofore borne a good reputation, was arrested yesterday and lodged in jail on a charge of bigamy and living in adultery with Emma Smith.

All union barber shops will close at 8:30 p. m. Nov. 25, and at 12 m. Nov. 26.

FLEETING RICHES.

The Man Who Builds Palaces and Fate.

The wise man does not build his own castle. He waits until the fool, having wasted his substance, has no further use for "his palatial residence," and then in he steps without bother or delay, and occupies it. Somebody, of course, must do the building, somebody's bank account and somebody's time must plan and pay for the original nests, but it is a painful, if not humiliating fact that the rich who order these homes are rarely those who live in them afterward. Many are the costly houses that have thus fallen into the market through this natural law of decay following fruition.

One is always amazed by the inevitable, although life is so crammed with experience that the inevitable seems the least surprising thing in the world. For years a man goes on living in some insignificant neighborhood. His house is ordinary, though his fortune is far from being so. At last, after long domestic pressure, he consents to build in a fashionable locality, and, having once consented, there is nothing mean in the expenditure permitted the architect and decorator.

Months are consumed in perfecting a house which he and his family hope to enjoy many years; but fate ordains the reverse. The tearing up of roots is often fatal to the human plant. Life that promised to be so cushioned and so gilded by this transplanting is suddenly snapped. Death or financial disaster has a fashion of upsetting human calculation, and the new home, with all its luxurious improvements, goes the way of most estates.

That is why the cynical observer wonders, when he looks at many an unfinished mansion, who the deuce will really lock its title deeds in the safety deposit vaults, or how long its owner will enjoy the new possession, without Fate knocking at its door.

A TURKISH DIOGENES.

There is reason to believe, writes Dr. Buckley in the Christian Advocate, that, except in their supernatural elements, the stories of the "Arabian Nights' Entertainments" have been paralleled over and over again in the history of Constantinople. One of the sultans, not so very long ago, was in the habit of going about like the famous Calip hHaroun-al-Raschid in disguise. On one occasion, passing a place where a man was excavating a cesspool, he heard him say to himself in a loud voice, "Persevere, my soul, or I will plunge thee into deeper filth than this."

A few hours afterward an officer approached the man, and said to him, "Come with me."

Horror took possession of the laborer, who, when found by the officer, was dressed like a gentleman, and was taking his ease in a cafe. He tried to ascertain from the person who had him in charge why he was wanted—for some went into the secret place under the control of the government and never came out—but no satisfactory answer could be given.

After being detained for a long time in fearful suspense, he was at last brought into the presence of a high official, and detained there. Finally he was taken into the very presence of the sultan.

The sultan was astonished to see the man, who had been covered with filth some time before, so well dressed and intelligent in appearance. He said to him, "Are you the man whom I saw at work in the cesspool?"

"I am."

"How is it that I find you dressed in this way?"

"I am well paid for my work, which is very filthy and disagreeable; and afterwards I cleanse myself and take mine ease."

"But what did you mean when you said, 'Persevere, my soul, or I will plunge thee into deeper filth than this?'"

The man trembled, knowing that at a word his head might be smitten from his shoulders. "Speak!" said the sultan. He answered that a man often says in anger what his heart will not acknowledge.

"But what dost thou mean?"

He hesitated, and the sultan reiterated his command: "What dost thou mean? What deeper filth is there than that in which thou dost work?"

He still hesitated. The sultan assured him that no harm should come to him, and the man then replied:

"My work was disagreeable, and I was almost tempted to leave it when I thought, 'I am still free, I am obliged to flatter no one; if I give up this work I may be compelled to take service under the government, to live by flattery and falsehood,' and so I said to my soul, 'Persevere, or I will plunge thee into deeper filth than this.'"

The sultan, according to the story, was so pleased with this answer that he gave him a handsome present and allowed him to go away unmolested.

AGAINST LOWER TAXES.

Vienna, Nov. 25.—The government today defeated a measure intended to provide for the reduction of the amount of the workingmen's income tax.

INTERESTING LEGAL CASE

Growing Out of the Whitney & Tracy Failure Involving $80,000.

An interesting case will come up for trial in the common pleas court next week. There are 15 suits in all, and about $80,000 is involved.

The title of the first suit is John P. Allison v B. H. Whitney et al. Doriah Tracy was a special partner in the firm of Whitney & Tracy. The point raised by the 15 plaintiffs is that Tracy failed to take the necessary legal steps which would have made him a special partner. The suits are really brought against Doriah Tracy.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Seymour, Ind., Nov. 25.—At Medora, a youth named Everett Motsinger, aged 16, in taking a shotgun from a corner of the room to go hunting, caught the hammer on his clothing, discharging the gun. The load tore a hole through his breast as large as a silver dollar, killing him instantly.

BADLY BURNED.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 25.—The parents of 2-year-old Kittie Howard left her locked up in the house yesterday. Her clothing took fire, and she will die. Two other children were barely saved, as also the house.

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE.

Millersburg, O., Nov. 25.—Coroner Cole has rendered a verdict in the Maxwell killing of justifiable homicide. This was expected and seems to be in accordance with the facts.

TERRIBLE ITCHING

Used Everything Five Months—In Three Weeks not a Scar of Pimple—Cured by Cuticura.

When my baby was three months old his cheeks and forehead began to break out with white pimples on red surface. In a few days itching commenced, which was terrible. After he would rub it, matter would ooze from the points. In a short time it spread over the top of his head, then scabs soon formed on head and face. We used everything we could hear of for nearly five months. It grew worse all the time. I saw your advertisement of the CUTICURA REMEDIES in the "Chicago Weekly." We purchased CUTICURA REMEDIES and commenced their use. In three weeks' time there was not a sore or pimple, not even a scar, on head or face. He is nineteen months old now, and has no signs of the disease. His scalp is healthy and he has a beautiful head of hair. (See portrait herewith.)

MRS. OSCAR JAMES, Woodston, Kan.

My infant, eighteen months old, was afflicted with skin eruptions on his lips. Bad sores came on other parts. All remedies failed until I procured CUTICURA. Cured a year and no return of disease.

GIVE THANKS

For the bright, beautiful world and the goodly share of it that comes into our horizon of living; for the dear friends, the loving hearts that reach out after us with their gentle ministrations; for the cheer of homes and our own who dwell within them; for the golden fruit of field and orchard, for garners that burst with their harvest wealth; for the peace that reigns and the charity that abounds in our blessed country; for the day and its associations, its sacred memories, yea even its hallowed graves; for the possibilities of this expanding life and the hope of immortality—give thanks.

Beautiful thought, that from hall and hamlet, from castle and cabin, from the lonely mission church in the wilderness and the lofty pillared cathedral in the midst of the city's grandeur, the incense of prayer and praise arises to the great Spirit of Good, the Omnipotent, the Omnipresent. The Spirit that wafts greeting to us from every swaying tree top, breathes the fragrance of love in every opening flower and gives the warm enfolding of constant care in the sunny skies and the softly falling showers.

Ah, if we were so prone to count life's joys and blessings, not only one day, but every day in the year, as we are to make lists of life's woes and brood over them, what balm and sweet herbs of healing would grow where rank thorns and thistles now make root and branch. It is the lesson of the day and the hour and the heart is tender to receive it: Return thanks for Heaven's rich mercies and share your good fortune with those whose hands are empty of gifts and whose hearts are heavy with burden-bearing up some Hill of Difficulty, while your path winds along the safe valley, sheltered, perhaps, by the rugged steeps that they must climb.

Give thanks for the beautiful, bountiful year,
That draws so near to its peaceful ending,
For the days that were bright and the days that were drear,
In the softened hues of twilight blending.

Remember the dew on the April grass,
And the buttercup stars in the meadow shining;
And the summer clouds that would gather and pass
And part their folds to the silver lining.

Remember the great, green shady woods,
And the fragrant things in their cool depths growing;
From the first "spring beauties" in pink-white hoods,
To the last wild roses in autumn blowing.

Remember the waving harvest plains
That grew into wealth while men were sleeping;
And the heavens smiled when the golden grains
Were garnered into the toiler's keeping.

Remember the ruddy orchard fruit
We piled on the sward when the leaves were dying,
When the earth put on her somber suit
And the winds thro' the barren boughs went sighing.

And so remember the bountiful year,
Whatever its busy days have brought us,
The laughter of joy or the bitter tear
By which the lessons of life are taught us.

Remember the warm, bright homes in the land;
Remember the homes that are poor and lowly,
Go carry them cheer, and the giving hand
Shall bring you a blessing deep and holy.

And peace like a dove shall come at last
With the balm of heaven for patient living—
Oh, then let all grieving be overpast
As we lift our hearts in a glad Thanksgiving.

GREAT REFORM MOVEMENT.

It seems that Rev. Hugh Price Hughes stirred New York city to a belief that the poverty-stricken, misery-haunted purlieur of the metropolis needed attention. To hear it proclaimed to the world that London's "West End" was not so full of "the sorrows of the slums," as our own brisk, boastful seaboard capital, was enough to provoke investigation. Two weeks ago a reform society was organized, something after the manner of the London societies which do such effective work. Last Sunday from every pulpit in New York, and in the City of Churches, from Boston and other eastern towns, the message went forth, "go ye into the highways and hedges." The sermons are preliminary to the great work in hand. It is well for other cities to catch the spirit, as they are bound to do; and now in this Thanksgiving and holiday-keeping season is auspicious time for activity in the good cause. When it is looked at squarely, how full of rebuke is the sight of multiplied church towers and cathedral spires overlooking the haunts of so much misery, while the army of worshipers that gather therein seem powerless to mitigate. And yet charity was never so ready, so willing, so abundant. It must be sytem and method that is needed. In later years it is coming to be understood that the miserable must be washed, clothed and fed, made comfortable in body before the soul can properly receive nourishment. Bath houses and soup houses are greater Christianizers than churches and lecture rooms for the cold and hungry poor. At least, they should have the precedence. That we doctor results where we should also investigate causes, is conceled, but a new awakening on the subject will doubtless lead to more effective measures. The reform is to be heralded with joy and may it sweep like a wave of purification across the whole country.

THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The latest information from Albany is that the general assembly will be democratic in both branches. Democrats everywhere and fair-minded men of all parties hope this news may prove true. For twenty-five years the Empire state of the country and democracy has been misrepresented in the United States senate, owing to a republican gerrymander. Fair play is all the democrats want. They have been denied such in New York.

Some inconsiderate persons are trying to lay the late terrible storms to Dyrenforth and his experiments. Those Connecticut deacons who resolved that it was wicked to make it rain when the Lord had not so willed it, will see vengeance in the visitation.

THE thanks of a patriotic and devoted people are due the Giver of all good gifts. Let your thanks be genuine and heartfelt to-morrow.

BEE readers will be kept thoroughly posted on the senatorial situation and the truth will be printed without favor.

IS Brother Griffin to be or not to be Speaker, that's the question.

VERY much of the internal row in the republican party that has hitherto been hidden is coming to light in the extreme partisan fight for Sherman's seat in the senate. The quarrel is of long standing and very bitter.

THANKFUL to the people of Ohio for their generous reception of himself and his tariff measure, Gov. McKinley will enjoy his turkey to-morrow. Likewise thankful to their several constituencies, Governors Russell, Boles and Flower will have a jolly time this harvest holiday.

TO the practical part of legislation, Representative Flickinger will devote all his energies the coming winter, while the frills will be left for Brother Brigham to wear. Just watch the difference.

ITS object is all right, even if the people's party does put too many planks in its platform. The ultimate defeat of the republican party for the purpose of destroying the baleful policy of that party, is the purpose of the new political organization, which is vigorous and aggressive.

THOUSANDS upon thousands of poor in the congested cities look not upon Thanksgiving Day as of special benefit to them, temporally or spiritually, yet sweet charity is abroad in the land looking for just such thousands as these.

OF serious interest to the people of Toledo is the tax inquisition business, which has driven much money out of this city. The policy is detrimental to business and makes money scarce.

READERS of the Bee will pardon the slip of their favorite paper to-morrow. Everybody around the establishment, from newsboys down to the editor, prefer not to mix turkey and business.

FOR the present very little can be done about improving the lake and river channels, but the winter should not be allowed to go by without a persistent effort being made to convince congress of the necessity of liberal appropriations.

THE Sherman men are not satisfied to permit Lucas county to be against their chief, and the campaign of education is to commence in earnest and will continue after the present senatorial struggle is ended. Uncle John expects many more elections.

GENEROUS politicians are not always those who are successful. Before and after election are two very different things, as many a worker has discovered. The selfishness of American politics is an American trait that is not at all commendable.

PATRONAGE is the bane of the chief executive of this state, so many fellows there are who think that public place is a private plunder.

OF more than ordinary significance is the remarkable democratic victory in Massachusetts this year, just preceding the presidential election. If New Yorkers will give Cleveland a hearty support the Old Bay State will certainly make electoral response.

THE Washington Post objects to the name of Raleigh which has been given to one of the new navy cruisers because it is a foreign name. No more so, being the capital of North Carolina, than Columbus, the capital of Ohio.

YEAR in and year out Charley Foster shows himself to be the most level-headed of Ohio republican leaders. He is an astute politician and always looks to himself, without forming entangling alliances.

NOW that the republican national convention is to be held in Minneapolis, St. Paul should prepare to capture the democratic convention. It would be a master stroke of business policy.

CLOSING, and, with the closing the summing-up of the year, what has President Harrison to be thankful for, except personal welfare? The twice slipping away of Iowa and Massachusetts occurred during his administration, and congress in the middle of his term is immensely and intensely democratic. Benjamin would better let some other person give thanks to-morrow.

AND the city which made the biggest claims for the national republican convention and received almost the least votes was New York, of course. The Platts and Fassetts and Shepards do not count for much outside of Gotham.

IN Pennsylvania, protection has the broadest field, and labor in protected industries the least reward. In Pennsylvania, too, there is more stealing in high places, and the greater the theft the greater the republican majority.

ITS object being to devise ways and means to help pay the fast growing debt of Toledo, the message of the Mayor favoring a wheel tax is a move in the right direction. Keep it rolling.

ELEGANT residences in that section west of Collingwood where the Robison lines run prove the benefits of extended street car service. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been put into homes in that vicinity because rapid transit to the business part of of Toledo is possible.

NEW rippers, and old rippers revised, new trustees, and old ones bounced, new schemes, and old ones, too, will be the speedy order of the day when McKinley and his legislature commence business at the old familiar stand.

BUILDING associations have done wonders for Toledo. Thousands of houses have been erected, and thousands of happy homes have been made happier because of these institutions.

IT is real mean for some of the republican newspapers of Ohio to call Mr. Foraker's attention to the ballot box crime of two years ago. That thing kicked Mr. Foraker out of office and that was punishment enough.

HERALDS of news, good, bright, clean newspapers, such as the Bee, are a blessing to the reading public. They are true friends and worthy companions.

THE election of a senator in the Licking-Muskingum district was so close that the courts are called upon to order a certificate of election issued to one of the candidates. Another contest.

GENERAL Squire ought to enjoy his Thanksgiving turkey to-morrow. Influence at high court is his to bestow, and all the Toledo applicants for office must have his indorsement.

PROSPERITY in worldly goods does not always signify contentment and happiness. Some men can't help getting rich, and some such fellows are regular grunters and growlers at everybody and everything. Don't envy them.

OF course Collector Waldorf and Postmaster Brown have the permission of the departments to work for Uncle Sherman. Civil service rules don't count this campaign.

TOLEDO does not yet lay claim to a national party convention, but just the same it is the second largest railroad center in the United States, Chicago being first.

AND when the roll is called in the senate Mr. Brice will respond, "here."

NORTHWESTERN representatives in the legislature the next two years will not properly represent the Gibraltar. The majority is all wrong.

OHIO is the fourth state in population and the first in politics.

REPUBLICAN PRESUMPTION.

Not many moons ago the republican party felt that it owned the senate, if not by supreme right and title, then by a lien which must be honored. One year ago, when the body took seats, a clean majority of fourteen on any party measure could be depended upon. The first Monday of the coming December will witness a majority of four when the roll is called and some of these mighty shaky, as was shown when the Force bill was being pushed by the extreme partisans at the last session. And yet the would-be autocrats of the party and of the country are boasting that "the McKinley law cannot be touched with a republican senate and a republican president." Not so sure as they would like to believe. The cry "let it alone" will not avail. The question of paramount importance and the one upon which all other issues depend is the question of equal rights for all classes in this country, the corner stone of whose temple of liberty is, freedom for all and favor for none. The first and foremost menace, the weakness that is undermining this foundation wall, is the constantly encroaching legislation of the tory party of the United States—legislation against the interests of the many in favor of the comparative few. A goodly army of honest men whose eyes have been slow to see, are at last opened to the actual condition of things. A bountiful harvest has lessened the effect of the avowed and attempted "home market" restriction. Suppose the reverse in natural conditions had been true, that breadstuffs had been short. With taxed food and clothing, what then would have been the lesson? Right is right; truth is mighty and will prevail. Because of our boundless resources, our magnificent domain, and our enterprising and inventive population, the majority of citizens can earn their living by skill of hand and brain and support an imposing minority without being ground into the earth like old world laborers under monarchial forms of government. It isn't enough that these conditions, in spite of laws that discriminate against the toilers in field and workshop, yet leave life quite endurable, and, when prodigal nature comes to the rescue, even enjoyable. It is not thus the people's conscience and sense of justice is to be quieted. Laws made for monopoly and by monopolists, which have created in a score of years a regiment of millionaires and an army of debt-burdened laborers, which compel a man to buy within arbitrary limits while what he has to sell competes with the products of the world in open markets; which bring about discontent, strikes and threatened (even justified) rebellion—these laws are wrong, unchristian, unfair, and menace the safety of the government. This legalized robbery of the people lifts its defiant head with as baleful a meaning as ever slavery held.

The advice or the threats of orators and organs with their "hands off the McKinley law," do not intimidate the democracy an infinitessimal atom. Democrats are in Washington to guard jealously the rights of the people. The mission of the party is to regain those rights and maintain them. No four majority in the senate and no president with a possible veto will be any barrier to action with that purpose in view.

The mayor recommends the imposition of a wheel-tax, and another advocate of the measure suggests a graded tax, light carriages to pay the least. This is getting at the thing at the wrong end. Persons who can afford to own carriages ought to be able to pay a wheel tax. The men whose daily living depends upon what their one and two horse drays and express wagons can earn are the persons upon whom the burden should fall the lightest. In principle a wheel-tax is all right. Those who use the streets should not complain if they are required to help maintain them.

All nations of the earth hold harvest festival in some form or other, but only the descendants of Yankee Doodle, brothers and sisters of E Pluribus Unum, we whose grandfathers and greatgrandfathers landed on that "stern and rock-bound coast," who paid the price of freedom with their blood, and whose descendants keep the bon-fires of liberty burning on the hill-tops—only this favored people drink of the cup of "Thanksgiving" in its full flavor.

Exit Fonseca; hail Peixotto! Brazil has changed presidents.

Butterworth Breaks Again.

Maj. Ben Butterworth has been kicking over the traces again, and his remarks are well calculated to create a disturbance in the ranks of the high tariff brethren. Speaking of his observations abroad, he says: "The first thing when I got to Bremen I began to look for pauper labor. I hunted for it in Hamburg, in Saxony. I scoured Berlin for it, but not one pauper laborer could I find. There are more loafers in an American city than there are in all Germany." Utterances like these do not tally with the McKinley shrieks concerning the pauper labor of Europe. Maj. Butterworth will have to be looked after.—Boston Herald.

As to Griffin.

Hon. C. P. Griffin, of Toledo, is not only still a candidate for speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, but he is going to win if the prospect foretells the result accurately. There is not another man in the new house so thoroughly fitted to preside over its deliberations.—Findlay Republican.

Mr. Griffin's delicacy about committing himself on the senatorial question may be due to the fact that he is a candidate for speaker.—Columbus Press.

Right and True.

The old-time method of selling taffy to the people has been cast aside by respectable newspapers. A newspaper that is not strong and bold enough to tell a disagreeable truth is a great curse to any community.—Galveston News.

Nothing in it But Fireworks.

The attempt to unseat Mr. Brice as senator from the state of Ohio is so unworthy of a civilized people that even the republican party will not lend their countenance to it.—New Orleans New Delta.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Ex Senator Edmunds has just shipped his carriage and horses from Burlington to Aiken, S. C., evidently with the intention of spending at least a part of the winter there.

Senator Voorhees of Indiana, is charged with smoking the worst cigars of any prominent man in the country. When any of the other senators get boxes of cigars as presents from their wives they hand them over to Voorhees.

The resemblance of Sir Edwin Arnold to Charles Dickens attracts general attention among New Yorkers who have the opportunity of comparing the appearance of these distinguished Englishmen whose visits are a generation apart.

Dr. Leslie Keeley, the reformer of drunkards, is a tall and rather large man of benevolent appearance. His hair and mustache are snowy white. He is said to be fast acquiring a fortune from his bichloride of gold treatment, the gold he gives his patients yielding him a hundred-fold increase.

Miss Leonore Snyder, the young prima donna who has been so successful in pleasing London audiences, is a western lassie, and, like Geraldine Ulmar, Emma Eames, and other noted stage vocalists, is a graduate of a church choir.

Herbert Spencer was once urged by a physician to get absolute mental rest by living for awhile in a boarding-house, in order that he might listen to nothing but cheery and brainless chatter. He tried it but could not stand it more than a week.

When an Englishman gets a governmental appointment the probabilities are that he will hold it for a long time. He does not face the uncertainty of a new administration every four years. Sir A. Paget is the senior member of the British diplomatic corps, and has held appointment under 13 cabinets. He recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his appointment as an attache.

SONGS THEY SOMETIMES SING.

Adapted from the French and Sung with Great Success by Toledo Politicians.

J. Kent Hamilton's roundelay:

Heller, I believed thee true,
And I was blessed in thus believing.
Now I mourn I ever knew
A politician so deceiving.
But go, deceiver, go,
The heart whose hopes could make it
Trust one so base, so low,
Deserves that thou shouldst break it.

Waldorf's battle cry:

Sweet are the smiles of the one you adore,
Sweet are the memories of friends gone before,
Sweet are the tears that from tenderness fall,
But revenge on a traitor is sweeter than all.

John F. Kumler's rondeau, dedicated to John Sherman:

When I loved you I can't but allow
I had many an exquisite minute,
But the scorn that I feel for you now
Has even more ecstacy in it.
Thus whether we're in or we're off,
The same fortune would seem to await you.
To love you is pleasant enough,
But 'tis simply delicious to hate you.

Postmaster Brown's lament to Collector Waldorf:

Collector, dear, and did you hear,
The news they're giving out,
That Griffin's got the speakership
In hoc, beyond a doubt?
It can't be so; it isn't so—
By this good stamp I swear—
He'll never plant his broadside in
The speaker's easy chair.

Griffin's poetical gift to Flickinger:

Oh, be never with the few,
They're at best a motley crew,
But be just the perfect ewe (you)
That you are, you see.
Take your pledges—pledges lie—
Like your liquor—on the sly,
And, mark me, never try
To be a star like me.

Judge Austin's lullaby:

Any office as long as it pays
Is the office that suits me best.
I think I can spend the rest of my days
In the Customs' house cosy nest.
I'm posted on most political tricks—
Just political tricks you know—
If Sherman's elected, I think I'm good
For fully six years or so.

W. I. Squire's plaint to McKinley:

When other lips and other hearts
Their tales of love may tell,
In language whose excess imparts
The power they feel so well,
There may, perhaps, at such a time
Some recollection be
Of work I've done for thee and thine,
Oh, then remember me.

Mayor Emmick's monologue:

When you nominated Emmick,
There was an epidemic
Of gambling and such things in the city
you'll allow.
If the plague ain't disappearing
On my plan of engineering,
I simply tell the public that
I
don't know
how.

They talk of Sunday closing,
Now what's the use proposing
Some idiotic nonsense that Philip won't allow?
The people, maybe, guess it,
But I may as well confess it,
Our plan is just to tell them
We don't know
how.

When my second term is ended,
I think 'twould just be splendid
If to congress they would send me—If they don't there'll be a row.
I asked Philip all about it
But he some how seemed to doubt it,
He shook his whiskers, saying, "Lord
I
don't see
how."

NEW POSTMASTERS FOR OHIO.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Rathbone, after an absence of nearly a week, to-day took hold of the crank and ground out a large grist of fourth-class postmasters. Among the Ohio appointments were the following: New Stark, Hancock county, G. S. Baughman, vice M. Rothrock, resigned; Jenova, Hancock county, M. Vaughan, vice G. Gosman, removed; McKay, Ashland county, S. Smith, vice J. A. Meyers, resigned; Trail, Holmes county, J. Kinsley, vice A. Miller, removed; Kelley's Mills, Lawrence county, C. Sullivan, vice H. T. HAS SUTTON RESIGNED?

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—State Auditor Poe telegraphed Senator Sutton, of Ottawa, inquiring whether he had resigned his seat in the senate. To-day a batch of bills amounting to $11,000, came from the Toledo insane asylum, and Sutton signed them as a member of the board. He cannot, under the law, be both senator and trustee, and there is no record that he has resigned as senator.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

Meetings for the Rest of Thanksgiving Week.

All day Friday, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., the Day nursery, 101 Oak street, between Huron and Superior, will be open for donations from those interested in the success of this new and worthy enterprise. Mrs. Maurice Scott, Mrs. Dr. Bacon, Mrs. A. M. Woolson and others of the board of managers will be present to receive those who call and to take charge of their donations. Anything that will go to furnish a nursery or a home of this kind will be useful and gladly received. Contributions of moneys and supplies will also aid much at the present time in getting the nursery in running order. Those who believe self-help is the best kind of help will approve of the purpose of this institution, which is to furnish a clean, wholesome, comfortable and safe place where children can be cared for through the day for mothers who are obliged to go out to work by the day to earn money to support, or help to support, their families. TRUSTEE SUTTON

Will Not Be Recognized by the Auditor of State Just Yet.

The Columbus Dispatch of last evening has the following relative to the Toledo asylum and Senator Sutton, one of the trustees, which raises a question as to Mr. Sutton's right to act as a trustee:

There arrived at the Auditor of State's office to-day vouchers in favor of the Toledo insane asylum aggregating about $71,000, signed by three of the trustees, one of whom, State Senator W. W. Sutton, was recently appointed. Auditor Poe has doubts about the senator's legal qualifications to act in this capacity, and telegraphed Mr. Sutton as follows:

"You have signed vouchers as trustee of Toledo asylum. Have you resigned as a member of Ohio Senate? See Ohio Laws, volume 87, page 241."

The law referred to in this instance is the one passed by the last legislature, prohibiting members of the General Assembly from becoming trustees of any public institutions. Mr. Sutton's term as senator does not expire until the first Monday in January, and the auditor does not feel at liberty to recognize him as a trustee of the asylum. In this instance the vouchers are signed by only three out of the five trustees, one of the number being Mr. Sutton. If he is disqualified from acting in the capacity of trustee by reason of being a member of the senate, then the vouchers have not been approved by a majority of the board.

Attorney General Watson was consulted by the auditor, and the latter is acting under his advice, but it is presumed all complications will be removed by the resignation of his senatorial seat by Mr. Sutton.

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS

Will Have a Protective Association in Their Midst.

Mr. George E. St. John, president; R. W. Simpson, general manager, and other gentlemen interested in the Retail Merchants' Protective association are in the city to-day, and completed arrangements for establishing a branch of the organization in Toledo, of which Mr. J. E. Bennett will be the local manager.

The association is national in its character, having branches in all parts of the country, with a capital stock of $500,000.

It is designed to furnish information to all retail merchants as to the standing of customers, and, in short, to protect such as become members from the regulation dead-beat.

About two months ago a branch was started at Detroit, and now nearly 300 merchants are connected and receiving the benefits. There are fully 20,000 members in the association in the United States.

The president and treasurer of the association is Mr. Geo. E. St. John, of Port Clinton, O. He is president of the German-American bank at Port Clinton, O.; president of the D. J. Brown Manufacturing company, of Sandusky, O., the largest hoop manufactory in the world, and vice president of the Sandusky Stone company, at Sandusky, being one of the heaviest stockholders in the concerns. He also owns a majority of the stock in the Hotel Victory at Put-in-Bay. The secretary is George H. Estabrook, of Rochester, N. Y., while R. W. Simpson, also of Rochester, is general manager.

The association has leased room No. 19 in the new Bee building, and will be ready for business in a few days.

MAY COME TO TOLEDO.

The Thomson-Houston Carbon Works, of Fremont.

The Thomson-Houston Carbon works burned down at Fremont last night, and already a movement is on foot to have the institution established in Toledo. It is understood the company will not rebuild at Fremont, and inasmuch as the firm has many interests here already, the prospects of getting the carbon works are good.

The Thomson-Houston people are interested largely in the Toledo Electric Light company, the Toledo Electric Street Car company, and somewhat in the Consolidated.

The works at Fremont employed 400 men. While gas is not an absolute necessity, it would be a great inducement if the company could secure enough to supply the baking ovens.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

GRIFFIN, OF LUCAS,

Talks About His Chances for Speakership and Gives President Squire a Puff.

To-day's Columbus Journal: Hon. Charles P. Griffin, the able legislator who has represented Lucas for four years in the house of representatives and who has been returned another term, dropped down yesterday to look up the origin of the report he had withdrawn from the contest for speaker.

"Such a story was a despicable and contemptible trick," said Mr. Griffin in his usual vigorous way to a reporter as he passed through the corridors of the state house. "I believe I know who was responsible for the circulation of the rumor. There were no grounds giving the least encouragement to such a statement. My chances have been improving right along, and the working over of the old scheme to get me out of the fight without my consent has added to my support. Yes, I believe I will get more votes on the first ballot than any other candidate, and believe I will win."

"How about the senatorial fight?"

"Everybody knows my position. I vote as my constituency dictates. But I am talking about the speakership."

"And the election?"

"It was a grand victory, and to the republican state league was it largely due. Without this organization we would have had a hard time of it. Through its efforts we gained in nearly every democratic county in the state. Working in unison with the state committee its achievements were glorious."

Mr. Griffin is not overflowing with love and admiration of the Australian system, as provided under the present law, and points out a number of weak spots which he declares would prove it unconstitutional. The voters of several precincts in his county would have been disfranchised but for the forethought of the board of elections in ordering three sets of tickets printed. Though the law specifies but one the board thought they would take no chances and had three packages of tickets prepared. It was fortunate that this was done as in several places the one entrusted with the regular package did not report till nearly noon.

THE GAS TRUSTEES

Hold a Special Meeting—Another Tilt With the Water Works People.

A special meeting of the gas trustees was held this morning to take action on connecting new wells in the field.

Supt. O'Herron recommended that certain lines in the Fifth, Ninth, Third and Seventh wards be extended so as to complete connections. Referred to the manager to make estimate of cost.

Manager Heston reported unfavorably on the application of William Read for gas fitter's license. Adopted.

Superintendent Cotter of the water works wrote stating that the request of the gas trustees relative to cutting off the gas had been complied with. Coal is being used under four boilers and gas under three.

It appears that the water works people insist on regulating the supply at the works, in which event there will be trouble, as the gas trustees claim the right to turn off the gas whenever necessary.

Secretary Heston said the supply of gas was still unsatisfactory in some localities. He did not know that the gas had been cut off from the water works.

Supt. O'Herron in reply to a query said, in order to cut off the water works it would be necessary to cut off several houses. The gas had been partially cut off by the water works people. No gas was being used under any of the boilers last evening.

Manager Heston was instructed to cut off the gas from the water works instanter.

Prayne Bros. asked for the return of certain monies advanced for gas which was never furnished. Referred.

The Brown Gas and Oil company offered to sell the board a number of gas wells cheap. Referred to committee on territory.

McMahon & Co. submitted a proposition for connecting lines with the new wells. Kerlin Bros. also submitted a similar proposition. The contract was awarded to Kerlin, he being the lowest bidder.

JACK POT DIVORCE.

At Any Rate it Was a Very Nice Pair to Draw To.

Xenia, Nov. 25.—The sensational divorce proceedings between Rosa and George Weimer, of Jamestown, came to a close yesterday morning in a draw, the court holding that neither one of them was entitled to a divorce, although George beat Rosa black and blue and called her vile names, while Rosa called George viler names and threw a butcher-knife at him on one occasion, a flower crock at another and a hammer at another time.

The mother was given possession of the child and George assessed $200 per year for its support.

From other members he has received such promises of support as will give him strong reasons to believe he will be elected Mr. Laylin is a conservative man.

More Paternalism Prayed For.

A senator from Nebraska will ask the government to establish schools in his state for the education of its people in the science of raising and refining sugar. But his present proposition demonstrates the truth of both charges.—Chicago Times.

Dont be deceived by dealers who "cut" prices. "Cutting" prices leads to "cutting" goods. For this reason and to protect the public, the genuine medicines of Dr. R. V. Pierce, are now sold only through regularly authorized agents, who can sell only at the following long-established prices:

Golden Medical Discovery, $1.00 per bottle. Favorite Prescription, $1.00 per bottle. Pleasant Pellets, 25 cents per vial.

The genuine medicines, which can be had only at these prices, are the cheapest you can use, for they're guaranteed. It's "value received or no pay." In every case where Dr. Pierce's medicines fail to give satisfaction, the makers will return the money. But, they want to be sure that you get their medicines, and not their bottles refilled or tampered with, or spurious imitations.

Refuse everything offered as Dr. Pierce's medicines at less than the above prices. They are generally spurious.

YUSSOUF.

A stranger came one night to Yussouf's tent,
Saying: "Behold one outcast and in dread,
Against whose life the bow of power is bent,
Who flies, and hath not where to lay his head;
I come to thee for shelter and for food,
To Yussouf, called through all our tribes 'The Good!'"

"This tent is mine," said Yussouf, "but no more
Than it is God's; come in and be at peace.
Freely shalt thou partake of all my store,
As I of his who buildeth over these,
Our tents, his glorious roofs of night and day,
And at whose door none ever yet heard 'Nay.'"

So Yussouf entertained his guest that night,
And, waking him ere day, said: "Here is gold;
My swiftest horse is saddled for the flight;
Depart before the prying day grows bold."
As one lamp lights another, nor grows less,
So nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

That inward light the stranger's face made grand,
Which shines from all self-conquest. Kneeling low,
He bowed his forehead upon Yussouf's hand,
Sobbing: "O! shiek, I can not leave thee so;
I will repay thee; all this thou hast done
Unto that Ibrahim that slew thy son!"

"Take thrice the gold," said Yussouf, "for with thee
Into the desert, never to return,
My one black thought shall ride away from me.
First born, for whom by day and night I yearn,
Balanced and just are all of God's decrees;
Thou art avenged, my first born—sleep in peace.

FINISHED ITS LABOR.

The National Republican Committee Has Adjourned.

A Call Issued Regulating the Number of Delegates.

The Executive Committee Will Take Charge of All Work Connected with the Convention, and Will See That It Is Well Packed.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The republican national committee has issued the following call to republican electors of the United States:

"In accordance with usage and the instruction of the republican national convention, a delegate republican convention will be held at the city of Minneapolis on Tuesday, the 7th day of June, 1892, at 12 o'clock, noon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice-president to be supported at the next national election, and for the transaction of such business as may be brought before it.

"The republican electors in the several states and territories, and the voters, without regard to past political affiliations, who believe in republican principles and indorse the republican policy, are cordially invited to unite under this call in the formation of a national ticket.

"Each state will be entitled to four delegates-at-large and for each representative in congress at large two delegates, and each congressional district, each territory and the District of Columbia to two delegates. The delegates-at-large shall be chosen by popular state conventions called on not less than 20 days' public notice, and not less than 30 days before the meeting of the national convention.

"The congressional district delegates shall be chosen at conventions called by the congressional committee of each such district in the same manner as the nomination for a representative in congress is made in said district; provided, that in any congressional district where there is no republican congressional committee owing to redistricting the state under the next congressional apportionment, the republican committee shall appoint from the residents of such districts a committee for the purpose of calling a district convention to elect district delegates.

"The territorial delegates shall be chosen in the same manner as the nomination of a delegate in congress is made. The delegates of the District of Columbia shall be chosen at a convention constituted of members elected in primary district assemblies held under the call and direction of the republican central committee of the District of Columbia, which said committee shall be chosen, one from each assembly district, to be designated by a joint call with not less than 10 days' notice, signed by the member of the national committee for the District of Columbia and the chairman of the republican central committee of said district.

"An alternate delegate for each delegate in the national convention to act in the absence of the delegate shall be elected in the same manner and at the same time as the delegate is elected.

"All notices of contests must be filed with the national committee in writing, accompanied by printed statements of the grounds of contest, which shall be made public. Preference in the order of hearing and determining contests will be given by the convention in accordance with the dates of filing such notices and statements with the national committee.

"JAMES S. CLARKSON, Chairman.
"JACOB SLOAT FASSETT,
"Secretary."

An important step taken by the committee during the session was the reference to the executive committee with full power to act on all matters connected with the preparations for the next convention. The executive committee decided to assume active direction of the matter itself and arrange for the bids, printing of tickets, appointment of the sergeants-at-arms and appointment of ushers and doorkeepers for the convention.

It will also take charge of the preparation and publication of the stenographic report of the proceedings of the convention.

A conference was had immediately with some of the citizens' committee of Minneapolis, and directions were given by the executive committee for the preparation as soon as possible of a diagram of the convention hall, showing the number and location of seats, and all other necessary details.

The national committee again assembled to discuss routine business, the only feature of public interest being the conflict between two elements of the republican party in Utah.

After a short consideration of the matter the committee settled it by the adoption of the following resolution:

"Resolved, That in the committee elected by the committee of delegates at Salt Lake City, Sept. 2, 1891, we recognize the republican territorial central committee of Utah.

"Resolved, That we recommend to all the men of Utah whose ideas of national government and policy are in harmony with the national republican party, that they may bury their local differences and unite to rescue their territory from the danger and dishonor of future democratic control."

There followed a succinct statement from each member of the committee of the constitution of the party in the various states and its needs and prospects. These were generally hopeful in tone, and were received with enthusiasm by the committee, as well as by some of the members of the executive committee of the National Republican league, who were admitted to the hall to give aid in the party council. Ex-Gov. Pinchback, of Louisiana, however, varied the sameness of the addresses by indulging in a fierce attack upon the white republicans of the south, whom he held to be responsible for the lack of virility of the party in that section of the country, and whom he charged with suppressing the negro vote for fear of race issues. He held that their pusillanimous policy had resulted in untold party losses, and maintained that a few vigorous contests and manifestations of their rightful power by the southern negroes would have a wholesome political effect and redeem the southern states from democracy.

It was announced that a meeting of the executive committee would be held within two or three weeks upon a call from the chairman, to undertake the work preliminary to the convention, and at 7 o'clock that national committee adjourned sine die.

THEY WILL GIVE THANKS.

Fayette People Have Much Over Which to Rejoice.

Social and Personal Gossip Gathered by a Bee Correspondent for Readers of the Public Press.

Fayette, O., Nov. 25.—(Special)—This is Thanksgiving week, and the usual number of turkeys will be slaughtered and eaten, and people will have the usual good time in enjoying the good things that a generous Providence has blessed us all with.

The people of Fayette are promised a rare treat in hearing Rev. R. Rock, A. M., of Arcanum, O., on Thanksgiving day, at the M. E. church. He also lectures in the evening at the same place, on the subject, "Things Better Than Money."

The people of this country, above all others, have good cause for thankfulness. This cause, however, does not spring from the fact that it so happened in the construction and evolution of this planet that in that portion of it which is politically called the United States of America there are found such great chains of lakes; such mighty rivers; such incalculable mineral deposits; such vast tracts of fertile lands and such magnificent forests. But that this great country—the garden of the earth—is ours; that we are the fortunate possessors of all these natural factors that make a great and intelligent nation possible. In short, we should be thankful, first of all, that we are American citizens.

The democrats have reason to be thankful this fall, on account of the growth of democratic principles throughout the country, as are witnessed by the election returns from Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Iowa.

The republicans can be thankful, from their standpoint, on account of the result in Ohio, which gives them a governor, but the democrats will have to join in the thankfulness, seven in Ohio, as the result shows that a majority of the votes cast were plainly against the "protection system."

Perhaps Messrs. Sherman and Foraker can each be thankful in anticipations, and it is quite fortunate in their case that Thanksgiving comes before the legislature meets.

Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Allen, of Toledo, have been visiting friends here for the past few days. The doctor has a weakness for sporting, and was out among the quail several times, with varied success.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Acker, of Toledo, have been visiting friends here and at Maumee during the past week.

Dr. E. J. Emerick has moved to Columbus, O., where he will practice his profession. He is a Fayette boy, and his many friends here wish him success in his new location.

The Wabash people are still standing guard at the proposed Lake Shore crossing, west of town. The people generally regard it as a case of "dog eat dog."

The Normal school enrollment is constantly increasing, and the general satisfaction expressed by the students speaks well for the excellence of the school. Quite a number of the students are from distant states, and some from Canada. Prof. Dodds makes friends wherever he goes, and his management of the school shows his eminent fitness for the place.

Our merchants are doing a good business this fall. The abundant crops and fair prices have distributed considerable wealth among the farmers, and they are buying liberally of articles to add comfort and beauty to their homes.

THEY HAD TO STRIKE.

East Liverpool, Nov. 25.—All the kiln men of Wylie's pottery went out on a strike owing to the action of the management in placing an undesirable man in the position of foreman. As the labor in the potteries in this city is not organized, it is thought the strike will of brief duration.

WEARY MOTHERS

LOOK AT THIS.

Are these not healthy and bright children? Their appearance does not misrepresent them; they are both healthy and bright. They are the son and daughter of Mr. J. P. Wiley, of Dorchester, Mass., and he has an interesting story to tell in regard to them. The story is as follows:

"In 1885 my wife, accompanied by my little boy, at that time 11 months old, was visiting relatives in Scranton, Penna. The little fellow was suffering untold agony cutting his teeth. My wife was told to try Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion. The effect was magical. It did not stupefy the child, as most remedies of this character do; it simply soothed the pain of the burning and aching gums. I might write a volume, had I the time, praising this remedy, and then not express my feelings or do it justice, it is simply marvellous. After her return to Boston she wanted another bottle, but I found that it was unknown in this city. I corresponded with Dr. Hand, and received in reply a sample of each of his remedies. I used them on both my children, recommended them to all my friends, and have yet to find the person who, after using the remedies, especially Teething Lotion and Colic Cure, that could not praise them. People may say, and have said to me, 'Oh, there must be something in that Teething Lotion that affects a child's brain.' In reply to this, I will say I have two children, a boy and girl, who have been treated with Teething Lotion since time of beginning to end of teething, and I challenge any person to furnish two with any clearer brains. I cheerfully recommend them to parents who love their little ones."

THE LIBRARY TABLE.

Handsome Volumes for Holiday Remembrance.

Books and Books and Books--Who Writes, and Who Reads Them All?

"Friendship," by Three Great Authors—Building Manual—"Die Anarchisten" Translated—Magazines for December—Notes and Comments.

One of the daintiest gift books that has yet come to the Bee table is entitled "Friendship" and consists of Cicero's "De Amicitia" (concerning friendship) translated by Cyrus R. Edmonds; an essay by Francis Bacon, and one by Ralph Waldo Emerson. Not only are choicest thoughts of great minds here enshrined, but the beauty of the book in its cream white parchment cover and gold letters is a delight to the artistic eye. 'Twas a happy thought to bring these three great authors of different eras and nationalities together thus. Published by Albert Scott & Co., Chicago. Sold in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull. $2.

A new edition of Rosenthal's "Manual for Building and Loan Associations" is published by Robert Clarke & Co., Chicago. The original work is revised and enlarged making it most complete for information, guide and counsel. Emery Hiett, of Toledo, declares it to be "the best statement of both the theoretical and practical workings of building associations, as they now are, that I have ever seen." Secretary Detwiler says "the tables alone are worth the price of the book." The Bee unhesitatingly recommends it to all who are interested in this fixed yet steadily progressing institution of the country.

A small, neat grammar primer by Louis H. Ried is published by Anson, D. F. Randolph & Co., N. Y. The quite successful effort is made to simplify the rudiments of grammar so that the beginner shall not feel that it is the proverbial "dry, hard study." In the first lessons in grammar, however, all depends upon the teacher and little on the text book.

The author of the pretty French novel, "Colette," made so many friends in the reading world his (or her) name might well adorn the title page of a new work by the same hand: "Straight On," just published by the Appletons, of New York. It is a bright, wholesome story, pleasantly full of incident and, like all good stories for young people, has an interest for children of a larger growth as well. The book is beautiful in illustration and make-up.

The "Text-Book of Psychology," the latest issue in the International Education series (edited by W. T. Harris and published by the D. Appleton Co., New York,) is the work of Johann Friedrich Herbart, the German scientist, translated by Margaret K. Smith, teacher in Oswego, N. Y., State Normal school. It is aimed, in the publication of this series, to furnish a library for teachers and school managers and text books for normal classes. The comprehensiveness of the plan will be seen from the following prospectus (or rather conspectus, since the book in hand is volume eighteen of the series): "History of Education; Educational Criticism; Systematic Treatises on the Theory of Education, and fourth, the Art of Education." Under these general heads the various branches of the topics are elaborated. Herbart occupied the chair of the philosopher Kant and although he died fifty years ago his largest audiences are the students of to-day. His translator says "Since the time of Locke no man has done so much for Psychology."

"A New Aristocracy," by the lady who writes under the nom de plume of "Birch Arnold," is another book dealing in a way with the great industrial questions of the day. The three children of a clergyman, left without means at his death, young and without having finished their school education, begin to work their way through life by tilling a small market farm and selling the produce. The dignity of labor is the fundamental idea of the book. The story has many pathetic touches, and is not without humor. It will have many readers and do good. Paper covers, 50 cents; cloth, $1. Address Bartlett Publishing Co., 44 West Larned street, Detroit, Mich.

In Paper Covers.

It is understood by the few who understand the real principles of philosophic anarchism that the anarchist is a cosmopolitan. It is for this reason John Henry Mackay is so easily a leader in this school of thought? Born in Greenock, Scotland, of Scotch stock on his father's side, his mother a Hamburg lady, he was taken by the mother to her German home when three years old, his father being dead. He received a German collegiate education, and writes in that language, although he understands English, and has spent many months in the slums of London. He has been appropriately named "the first singer of anarchy," and his songs have been translated into many tongues. His latest work, "Die Anarchisten," translated into English by Geo. Schumm, is published by Benj. R. Tucker, of Boston, and sold in paper covers for 50 cents. Mr. Mackay gives the sub-title to his book, "A Picture of Civilization at the Close of the Nineteenth Century," and the satire of the word "civilization" in this connection can only be appreciated by reading the book. He says in his preface, "London and the fall of 1887 have served me as a background of my picture." The ignorant, and this does not always mean the uneducated, will be deterred by prejudice from reading "The Anarchists." Those who do read it will find the best exposition ever given of the doctrines of genuine anarchists or individualists. The book deals incidentally with the execution of the Chicago (so-called) anarchists, whom Mr. Mackay denies the right to be so called. To them, however, he does not deny respectful consideration, while the bitterest words in the entire book are hurled against Herr Most and his doctrines. In the main living persons are dealt with, and though names have been omitted, it is true, as the author says, "the initiated will always recognize without difficulty the features." For instance, William Morris and Anna Besant are unmistakable.

"Light o' Love," by Clara D. Maclean, published by the Worthington company, in their International Library series, is a novel that will find many readers. It is written of southern people, by one who knows and loves and can delineate the southern character, the hospitality and courtesy which is so charming in its women, the chivalry of its men. The time of the story is before the war, and the incidents are of love and jealousy with just enough of revenge to make the plot interesting. The photogravure illustrations are excellent. Price, 75 cents; for sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

"The Johnstown Stage and Other Stories" by Robert Howe Fletcher, is a late issue in Appleton's "Town and Country Library." They are bright stories every one, "Corner Lots—a Tale of a Boom" is one of the best of them. This series is printed on fine fabric paper, in clear type, with wide margins and strong paper covers; and the quality of the contents is always worthy its good setting. Published semi-monthly, $10 per annum.

"A Romance of Two Brothers" by Edgar Fawcett is published in strong paper covers by the Minerva Publishing Co., N. Y. No. 7 in the "Romantic series," issued monthly; $3 a year.

"Tales from Town Topics" is a collection of the stories, sketches and poetry, published from time to time in that brisk newspaper. It is decided to issue these collections quarterly. Subscription price $2 a year.

Magazines.

Belford's Monthly and Democratic Review for November comes along in the month it is named for, in a sensible fashion. Its first paper has a startling title; "Is the United States Honest?" by Hon. Jas. H. Hopkins. Col. Mosby contributes his second paper on the Gettysburg campaign. A consideration of the income tax as a means of national revenue is presented by Joseph Dana Miller. George D. Buddecke writes enthusiastically of democratic leaders; Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland. These are a few of the many good things in the number.

Helen Campbell is given red-letter prominence by the Arena in its December number, with a novelet which deals with hypnotism and insanity. Camille Flammarion on "New Discoveries in the Heavens" and Hon. David A. Wells on "Protection and Free Trade" are likewise honored. A fine engraving of Whittier is the attractive frontispiece. Edgar Fawcett presents vividly "The Woes of the New York Working Girl." George Stewart, D. C., LL.D., writes an appreciative sketch of Whittier, the New England poet. Helen Campbell appears a second time, in an article treating of the influence of club associations on working women. Hamlin Garland, whose reputation as a story writer is growing world-wide, contributes "Uncle Ripley's Speculation," and Hon. Carroll D. Wright a paper on divorce. The number is strong in its writers and the topics are live and timely. The December issue is number one of volume five.

The Youth's Companion appears in handsome covers and with reading matter special for Thanksgiving. One grand test of the Companion, the chief reason for its long-continued popularity, is the fact that its contents interest young and old.

Appleton & Co. send out four new pamphlets in their Evolution series; "Form and Color in Nature," by William Potts; "Optics as related to Evolution," by L. A. W. Alleman, M. A., M. D.; "The Evolution of Art," by John A. Taylor, and the "Evolution of Architecture," by John W. Chadwick. Ten cents a number, $2.40 per annum; published fortnightly. These are for sale by Brown, Eager & Hull, in Toledo.

"The Rudder" is a monthly journal, devoted to aquatic sport and trade. Published at Watertown, N. Y. Dainty in make-up; fine paper, blue ink and appropriate illustrations. $2 a year.

The December number of the Quiver has a colored frontispiece, "Their Evening Hymn," representing an old lady "wearing out life's evening gray," listening to the singing of a young girl who sits at the piano. The opening paper describes "November Sunshine." "Through Devious Ways" is the title of a new story to be continued. "On Entering the New Home" is the title of a poem, followed by an illustrated paper "About Church Bells." "The Easy Yoke and the Light Burden" is a paper for Sunday reading, by the Rev. A. Boyd Carpenter. "The Two Miss Torringtons" is a story with an excellent lesson involved in it. "The Tabernacle in Utrecht," with a portrait of the Rev. L. Schouten, is an interesting paper. "On the top of Mount Vesuvius," by Prof. W. Gordon Blaikie, is what its title would indicate. A new serial, "The Heiress of Aberstone," is begun in this number and promises well. A short story, "For a Little While," "Their Evening Hymn," a poem, "The Privilege of Sanctuary," by the Rev. Hugh Macmillan, D.D., and some other articles equally as good close an excellent number. Cassell Publishing company, $1.50 a year.

Notes and Comments.

R. H. Stoddard, who writes the literary reviews for a New York paper, scolds because Andrew Lang is editing a new edition of Scott's Waverley Novels. Mrs. Maxwell Scott has given him access to all the notes and manuscripts at Abbotsford, and although Mr. Scott declares it "a piece of presumption" on Mr. Lang's part, it is just possible that the new edition will find favor in the eyes of the reading public. Mr. Stoddard can read his old books in preference, if he chooses. Mr. Lang is eminently fitted for the task and if there remains any unearthed treasure at Abbotsford, he will bring it to light.

"A little tour in Ireland," by an Oxonian, illustrated by John Leech, gives racy and entertaining sketches of visits to Dublin, Galway, Connamara, Athlone, Limerick, Killarney, Glengarriff, Cork and other cities of the Emerald Isle. It contains some excellent descriptions of scenery and good delineation of character, and is readable and entertaining throughout. Published by Gottsberger & Co., N. Y.

"The Hidden City," written and illustrated by Walter H. McDougall, is issued by Russell & Co. in their Sunshine series. It is a story of mystery, the balloon and the "underworld," fanciful and imaginative to a degree.

"A Maiden's Choice," by W. Heimburg, translated from the German by Elsie L. Lathrop, is published in the Worthington International Library. It is issued in handsome fashion and with photogravure illustrations, uniform with other volumes in the series. A portrait of the author shows a beautiful woman, yet young in years.

The Minerva company issue in paper covers at 25 cents, "A Ruby Beyond Price," by Sir Gilbert Campbell, Bart., author of "The Mystery of Manderville Square." The story is sensational in the best sense of that word, and those who enjoy novel reading for the sake of story, will enjoy this book.

The Worthington company add to the valuable books they have reproduced in the Rose Library series Le Sage's well-known "The Bachelor of Salamanca." Old editions of this work are well out of print, and this translation, by James Townsend, will be welcomed. Price 50 cents; five photogravure illustrations.

The above mentioned books are for sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

The late Donn Piatt left two unpublished books. One is a life of General George H. Thomas, which he wrote jointly with General H. M. Cist of Cincinnati, the other a novel which touches indirectly on the Beecher scandal, and is also a tribute to Archbishop Purcell and his brother.

"Lance Falconer," the clever authoress of "Mademoiselle Ixe," has sent the first cheque received from her story to the editor of Free Russia to dispose of as he thinks fit, "as a mark of the deep sympathy with the oppressed in Russia, of which that story was in part the outcome."

The little work from the pen of Carl Schurz, reprinted from an essay in the Atlantic Monthly, is like everything from the pen of the scholarly author, equally entertaining and instructive. It gives the best analysis of Mr. Lincoln's character in a small volume of 120 pages that has been given in the same brief space by any writer on the subject.

Rose Hartwick Thorpe is writing a history of Oregon.

Madeline S. Bridges, the name which lovers of good poetry will recognize, is the nom de plume of Mary Alingie de Vere, a bright young woman of Brooklyn, New York. She is something of a recluse, but those who know her speak in enthusiastic praise of her personality. Her first volume of poetry is about ready for the public.

It is stated that, in the later years of his life, the Century Magazine offered Lowell $1,000 each for as many essays as he would write for its columns, and that Harper's Magazine made him a proposition of $5,000 for six essays. This shows the capacity of the great magazines to pay money and their liberality in paying it. It also shows the indifference of Lowell to money. Partly, perhaps; but we are inclined to think it shows, also, the fastidiousness of the man about his literary work, and his dislike of doing any such work to order.

Harper's Young People announces a "World's Fair" for boys and girls, in which no less than 4,000 prizes are offered. The prizes include a bicycle and a library of 100 volumes, while not a few of even the lesser prizes are worth from $8 to $20. Every boy and girl is entitled to compete. The Young People sends a prize list free, which gives full particulars. Its address is Franklin Square, New York.

Madame Victoria (Woodhull) Martin has written an able essay on "The Rapid Multiplication of the Unfit," which is published simultaneously in London and New York.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

A New Comedy for Toledo People To-Night.

Three Performances of Rhea in "La Czarina"—The Much Talked of Clemenceau Case—The Bostonians.

The latest comedy success, Jane, will be presented at the Wheeler opera house to-night by one of the strongest companies that has been here this season, with Miss Johnstone Bennett in the title role. Jane is a comedy of a high class and not of the horse play style so prevalent at the present time. The piece, which is under control of the veteran manager, Charles Frohman, made a great hit at the Madison Square theater where it just recently closed a long engagement. The company is playing a few short stands while on the way to Chicago for a run and Toledo is to be congratulated on the opportunity of witnessing it.

Rhea as La Czarina.

That admirable actress and representative woman, Mille. Rhea, will again visit this city Thursday and Friday evenings and Thursday matinee at the Wheeler opera house. This time she will offer for inspection a new historical drama translated from the pen of Eugene Scribe, entitled La Czarina. It should certainly prove one of the interesting theatrical incidents of the season.

It is a companion play to her great Josephine presented last year.

Few women have done as much for the stage in the way of new plays as Rhea. Nearly every year of her American sojourn she has brought forward one new play or more, often at great personal sacrifice, but always with an object, neither wholly selfish nor wholly commercial. Naturally she hoped to profit by her enterprise, but nobody who knows Rhea can doubt that as an artist, and in her managerical office she is superior to merely sordid results. Rhea belongs to the order of women to which the American public is invincibly loyal. She has won honors here and fortune, and being in the prime of life there is likelihood that we shall see many more evidences of her professional enterprise.

Clemenceau Case.

That much talked of play, The Clemenceau Case, which was adapted by William Fleron from the French dramatization of Alexander Dumas's striking novel, will be seen at Wheeler's next Saturday matinee and night, November 28. The cast includes Sybil Johnstone and others of the participants in the New York Standard theater production.

Those who have not read Alexander Dumas' novel may be told that the incidents of the play grow out of the exploits of a banished Russian countess, who has come to Paris, destitute, with her pretty daughter, Iza, and who is forced to live in top-floor apartments, till her daughter made a conquest of Pierre Clemenceau a talented but not rich artist who falls desperately in love with her. She becomes his wife, but soon finds a former lover, who was extremely wealthy.

The liason is made known to the husband by a friend. A duel follows, in which the lover is wounded, and the artist husband goes to Rome to drown his trouble by devotion to his art. He fails in this, returns to Paris, declares his love to his wife, who says she responds to his passion. The husband finds that his wife has taken up with a duke, whereupon he kills her and is ready to give himself up to the police when the curtain falls.

One scene in the play which has been most talked about is where Iza poses as a model for a statue which her husband is making.

The Bostonians.

The New York Herald has the following to say of the Bostonians who appear at Wheeler's Monday in Robin Hood:

"The success of the Bostonians at the Standard theater is remarkable. This excellent organization has been known throughout the United States, but for many years has not been heard in New York city. They came here with the opera of Robin Hood and have made the hit of the season. Not in years has New York heard such a musical organization, not in years has such a hit been made in light opera, as was made in Robin Hood. The Bostonians are always welcome here, and will return here again and be received with open arms."

TANTALUS.

Fame? why a fig for fame—he had marked its flight, a will-o'-the-wisp,
When the sweet spring grass rose fresh and strong, and when autumn leaves grew crisp.

Gold? 'Twas the basest of all base metals
And he sang better iron and steel;
And he sang his sovereigns into the dust
and ground them under heel.

Love? and by love's deep craving alone (God pity him) he was curst,
As a lion that digs in the desert, and digging, dies of thirst.

For, luminous—starlike—framed on high, a star that could never fall,
Was the face of the woman he loved—and who loved him, that was all.

—Ernest McGaffey, in Arkansaw Traveler.

PUMPKIN PIES.

"And on Thanksgiving Day when from East and from West,
From North and from South, come the pilgrim and the guest,
When the grey-haired New Englander sees round his board,
The old broken links of affection restored;
When the care-wearied man seeks his mother once more,
And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before;
What moistens the lip and what lightens the eye,
What calls back the past, like the rich pumpkin pie."

Pie of any kind is an American idea. The English have tarts and the French have pastry, but no graduate of a French cooking school with a diploma a yard long, no royal baker with recommendations from dukes and princes, can ever make a pumpkin pie like those our mother used to make.

The pumpkin is a historic fruit. The first mention we find of it is in the old fairy tale of Cinderella, when a handsome carriage was manufactured out of a pumpkin shell. Yankee ingenuity has never equalled that. Perhaps, however, it is as a tribute to the talent of Cinderella's godmother that Yankees have always been admirers of pumpkins. The pumpkin grows wild in many of the countries of the Orient, but the first account we have of its cultivation is in this country, and long before the advent of the white man.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Prcie Current for Produce and Other Articles

The Markets.

London wheat market quiet, dull and lower; corn fair demand. Liverpool wheat dull and 1d per 100 pounds lower; corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,327,387 bu, compared with 700,606 bu on the same day last year.

Duluth shipped 1,004,673 bu of wheat yesterday, and took into store 626,800 bu. We think this breaks all records in wheat movements.

Shipments of Breadstuffs.

Liverpool, Nov. 9.

Special cable to Daily Trade Bulletin, Chicago:

Shipments of flour and wheat to United Kingdom during the past week, 6,910,000 bu; to continent, 4,240,000 bu; total, 11,150,000. Shipments during the week previous, 10,960,000 bu. Requirements, 7,000,000 bu. Markets depressed temporarily.—Corn Trade News.

There are at present 24 grain ships at Odessa loading with wheat whose cargoes are not yet completed. The authorities have given permission for these ships to continue their loading until their cargoes are completed despite the fact that the ukase prohibiting the export of wheat from Russia went into effect Monday.

The stock of grain in private elevators at Chicago are reported at 1,921,000 bu wheat, 862,000 bu oats, 82,000 bu rye, 305,000 bu barley, and 17,000 bu flax seed.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 618,781 bu in excess of the corresponding Wednesday in 1890.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 385,807 bu of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 600,000 bu. Exports of corn 137,505 bu, and oats 15,727 bu.

English markets as reported herein are dull and lower for wheat and steady for corn.

Russian Shipments.

Great efforts have been made at all Russian ports to get wheat afloat before its exportation was prohibited. In the first half of this month 33 steamers entered the port of Odessa and many steamers at other ports, all to load wheat. Dornbusch says: "Since August 1 America, Russia and India have exported about 120,000,000 bu of wheat and flour as compared with about 56,000,000 in 1890 and about 60,000,000 in 1889. The Russian exports alone in this month will probably exceed two and one-half million bu. All this energy in getting wheat to market must have a temporary depressing effect.

On the other side of the question the cable states that the Emperor is about to dismiss the minister who has concealed from him the true state of the country in the supply and wants. Another cable says Russia will import from America, which seems rather breezy and chestnutty.

Foreign Crop Prospects.

Beerbohm of Nov. 13 gives the crop indications in several foreign states which we have not space to print.

Germany is, on the whole, not unfavorable.

Roumania—The prospects are very discouraging. Winter has set in with severity with only about half the autumn work completed. The limited savings have germinated badly.

Hungary.—Weather has been unfavorable and has inflicted damage on the young plant. The crop is feeble and in great danger of further loss.

In the Western Wheat Belt

The weather has, so far, committed no ascertained damage. The freeze after the late general and copious rains was probably not severe.

The wheat markets of this country have been irregularly lower to-day but only to a limited extent. Most of the day prices were 1-4 to 3-8c lower, but altogether the fluctuations were within narrow limits. Bull news of a reliable character was scarce, and to-morrow being a holiday dealers were not so anxious to go in, long or short.

Corn has been less rampant to-day and extreme prices have hardly been maintained.

Bradstreet's report of the visible supply makes an increase of wheat of 3,371,000 bu. Corn 34,000, oats 91,000 bu. On the Pacific coast wheat decreased 556,000 bu.

In New York November and December wheat closed 1-4c lower; November corn 1c, and December 1-2c lower; November oats 5-8c lower.

In Chicago November and December wheat closed 1-8c lower. Corn for November closed much higher at 74 1-2c; December unchanged; November oats 1-4c up.

In Toledo. The trading in wheat futures has been quite active considering that to-morrow is a holiday. The prices made during the day were lower than yesterday's close, and the last trades indicate a loss of 5-8c on December and May. On the call December sold at 96 3-4 and May at 1.04. After the call December sold at 96 3-4 and closed at 96 5-8. May sold at 1.04 and closed at 1.03 7-8.

Cash wheat continues dull and the sales are light, but sellers were not pressing it. No. 2 soft sold at 96 1-2c and closed at 96 1-4c, a loss of 1-4c; No. 3 soft at 93c; No. 4 at 87c.

Corn—No. 2 at 52c; No. 4 at 44 1-2c. Oats—Nothing done. No. 2 about 34c. Rye 1-2c lower; No. 2 at 94 1-2c; November at 96c; rejected at 86c.

Clover seed was a shade weaker and less active. Prime for cash at $2 50; December at $5 17 1-2; January, $5 25; February at $5 30; No. 2 at $4 80 to $5 05; old No. 2 at $4 80.

"HAD A BANG-UP TIME."

Toledo lodge of Odd Fellows held their annual election of officers last night, resulting as follows: Noble grand, Theodore Warren; vice-grand, E. O. Richmond; recording secretary, Owen Blackmore; permanent secretary, Henry Arndt; treasurer, W. G. Bartlett; trustees, A. J. Eyster, William Dewey and Ruel Hawkins; member building board, R. G. Bacon; member relief committee, C. B. Gifford. After the election a stag party was enjoyed, partaking of the nature of a smoker and social, and at an appropriate time refreshments were indulged in, all of which was much enjoyed. "We had a bang-up time," is the message Secretary Owen Blackmore sends to the Bee, and that's what might safely be expected from any company of which the happy "Black" is a member.

TO-MORROW'S FOOT BALL GAME.

The game of foot ball which will be played on the Inving ground to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock will be in every respect the most scientific game that has ever been played in the city. While the Outings have been easy victors in the practice games thus far played, it is by no means certain that they will win to-morrow. The Cycling club is far stronger than ever before, and will include Grosh and Odell of the University of Michigan, and Sawkins of Notre Dame. The Outings, too, are stronger than heretofore, but the increase is not so marked as in the Cycling club. The following college men are on the eleven: Cooney of Notre Dame, Foster, Waite and L. Dodge of Technology, H. P. Dodge of University of Michigan, Secor of Andover and Saltonstall of Harvard. The Cycling eleven is slightly the heavier, but the Outing's team work is supposed to be the better. A close game may be expected, with even chances for winning. Everybody interested is invited to attend.

GAUMER WILL BE SEATED.

He Will Make the Republicans Contest His Seat.

Coshocton, O., Nov. 25.—Senator-elect D. H. Gaumer and his attorney, S. M. Winn of Zanesville, came here and obtained a writ of mandamus from the circuit court, compelling the republican members of the Licking county election board to make out an abstract of the votes in Licking county for the office of senator, attest, seal, and transmit the same to the president of the Muskingum county board of elections.

The returns show that Gaumer was elected by a majority of one.

The action of the circuit court insures Senator Gaumer receiving the certificate of election, and places the responsibility of beginning a contest with Iden, the republican candidate.

Senator Gaumer expects the republican members of the senate to deprive him of the seat to which he has been legally elected ,even though it was by a bare majority of one.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

The Speranza minstrels give an entertainment at Tiffin to-morrow night.

Children's matinee to-morrow afternoon at the World's Clock exhibition, 613 Cherry street.

Delos Slater, boarding at the Montreal house, complained that his shirt was stolen last night.

The second hop in the series of 1891-92, given by Toledo council, United Commercial Travelers, will be held at Odd Fellows' hall on Friday evening.

A motion for new trial was filed some time ago in the case of Michael Crechna against the city. An entry was made today, the plaintiff remitting $60.

At 3:30 this morning a sailor in attempting to board his ship at the C., H. & D. dock, missed his footing and walked into the water. He was pulled out with nothing more serious than a good ducking.

The case of Edward Newman against the city is on hearing in Judge Lemmon's court. It is an action to recover $3,000 damages for injury sustained while driving over Cherry street bridge, at which time the draw was turned.

CHILDREN'S PRESENT MATINEE,

To-morrow afternoon at the World's Clock Exposition, 613 Cherry street, between Erie and Huron. All the children of this city have an opportunity to see a work of art which can never be forgotten. Children admitted for 5 cents, and each child gets a little watch.

BOUND TO UNSEAT GAUMER.

Newark, O., Nov. 25.—The called meeting of the Licking county board of elections to act upon the returns sent back from Muskingum county regarding the senatorial muddle, was productive of no change.

Republican members assert that they will not stultify themselves, and that Gaumer isn't entitled to the seven votes claimed.

They notified the Muskingum board that the Licking board could come to no other conclusion, and sent the returns back.

THE AEOLIAN AND THE BUSINESS MAN.

The active man of business does not have sufficient leisure to enable him to give music enough time to learn to play, or to keep up his practice, if he has taken lessons when young; he is, therefore, entirely dependent upon the performance of others for any music he may desire to hear.

For people in this situation, the Aeolian is especially adapted. The knowledge necessary to enable a person to play is so slight that any one can master the instrument with a few weeks' practice; your mood can then dictate your selections. A symphony or an opera can be played as readily as a waltz or a ballad, and anything ever written can be obtained for the Aeolian.

WORK OF TIMBER THIEVES.

Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 25.—Timber inspectors have discovered $7,000 worth of timber being shipped to market which had been stolen from the government lands. Prominent men are implicated and a big scandal will follow.

"Aren't you ever going to grow old, like the rest of us?" asked a man of an acquaintance he hadn't seen for some time. "Well, not so long as I can purify my blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla," was the apt reply. This man knew what he was talking about.

DESIRES TO BEAR TESTIMONY.

Henry Thorne, traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A., writes from Exeter Hall, Strand, London, February 2, 1888: "I desire to bear my testimony to the value of Allcock's Porous Plasters. I have used them for pains in the back and side arising from rheumatic and other causes never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting. Those engaged as I am in public work which involves exposure to sudden changes of temperature, will do well to keep a supply of Allcock's Porous Plasters in their portmanteaus."

Silver is Making Friends Across the Ocean.

The White Metal May Yet Become a Standard Money Between the Countries of the Earth.

New York, Nov. 25.—The Herald's Washington special says: The subject of an international agreement for the enlarged use of silver as money will not be discussed at length by the president in his annual message, nor by Secretary Foster in his annual report.

They prefer to wait a while, to discover the temper of congress, before taking a decided position. The president may renew the promise of his first annual message to submit a special message on the silver question.

The reports which have been received from Banker Seligman and other representatives of the government in England, France and Germany have been very encouraging for the recognition of the white metal as money if this country does not plunge into free coinage without waiting for other nations.

The president has been led by the reports from England to believe that the feeling toward silver is growing more friendly, and that the bank of England might possibly be induced to issue a limited amount of notes based upon silver bullion.

If this experiment proved successful, the theory of the administration is that the full remonetization of silver might follow in the course of a few years.

A DRUNKEN BRUTE

Hangs His Wife Up by the Thumbs at Wellston, O.

Wellston, O., Nov. 25.—A case of wife-beating came to the light of the public this morning, and the people of West Broadway are in a perfect ferment of excitement. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the citizens of that neighborhood were awakened by the screams of a woman, and a crowd soon congregated at the scene.

The cries emanated from the house occupied by Julius Boswecker. The husband was administering such punishment to his wife as would cause one's blood to boil. He had her thumbs tied together with a rope and then had the rope slipped through an iron staple driven in the overhead ceiling. He would draw his wife up, and after holding her there until he grew tired, would let her go down again.
